INTRODUCTION

A DEFINING MOMENT FOR THE CHURCH

"Civilizations develop and flourish in response to the challenges they face with creative new ideas. When they are rigid, failing to respond to challenges, they decline."
(A. Toynbee)

We are at a kairos moment in world history. As we gaze across the world's horizon, several issues urgently beckon the Church to respond and engage. Nations are in uproar, religious kingdoms are shaking, social order is declining, the poor continue to face abject poverty and injustice, and the marginalized – the orphans - are uncared for and unloved. These are some of the many serious challenges facing the Church today. It appears as if Haggai is describing our world, where he records that God is shaking anything, everywhere, and everyone. (Haggai 2:6). It's therefore necessary to discern, understand, and recognize what God is doing, acknowledging that only what He has established will be left standing for His purpose and glory.

When a sense of divine appointment captures a Christian minority, the time is right to invite committed servants of God to catalytic event that will transform that nation. In the New Testament the word kairos is used in Mark 1:15, 2 Corinthians 6:2, 1 Peter 5:6 and Romans 13:11 to signal the following:

- It's time to wake up
- It's a time of crisis and new possibilities
- It's a strategic time
- It's God's appointed/approved time
- It's a time of repentance
- It's a time of renewal
- It's a decisive point in time

IN ESSENCE, KAIROS TIME IS A GOD-GIVEN MOMENT OF DESTINY. IT'S A DIVINE APPOINTMENT – NOT TO SHY AWAY FROM, BUT TO SEIZE WITH DECISIVENESS.

NEED AND BASIC PROPOSITION

Transform World Global Summit 2012 will urgently call the Church to consider the critical issues of our time. We have no choice but to respond as the Church that God has called us to be. Transformation is a journey that every generation must respond to through faith and prayerful action. Informed, cohesive, prayerful action with qualified participating global representation leads to a worldwide movement. By design, we trust that each challenge will produce a godly, Spirit-led response leading to a movement to follow Jesus, the head of the body of Christ. We are therefore asking God to guide, and you to join us, in discovering His response to the following challenges of our day. We have identified seven challenges that we will seek to address in the grace and wisdom of God with the inclusion of an intentional 4/14 Window consideration to empower the future generation.

CALL TO OUR UNITY IN OUR DIVERSITY[1]

In Christ, God has uniquely revealed himself as a triune life, Father, Son and Holy Spirit. The distinctiveness of the three divine persons in their diversity is enfolded in the harmony of infinite mutual love (Rom 15:30; 2 Cor. 13:14; Eph. 3:19; 1 John 4:8). Consequently, for humanity to be created in the image of God is a call to reflect unity in diversity in every aspect of life.

The Church's pursuit of this majestic calling requires a sharing in the Christ's own humility as foundational to any exercise of spiritual giftings (Phil 2:3-4, 5-11). The ascended Lord has bestowed various gifts on his Church whose functional unity hinges on humbly sharing the mind of Jesus (Eph. 4:1-3, Phil 2:3-4, 5-11). The task of these ministries is to equip all the people of God to express the offices of Christ as prophet, priest and king wherever each one has been called (Eph. 4:7-16; Acts 3:22-23; Heb 6:20; Rev 19:16; 1 Cor. 7:17). This is the mission of bringing the rule of Christ by Word and compassionate action to men and women in every sphere of culture, without exception (Eph. 1:22-23; 4:10).

Over the centuries, various Christian traditions have sought to be faithful to this call in a wide variety of ways. The different streams of the Church of God have not always agreed on the best forms to move towards seeing, the earth filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD as the waters cover the sea. (Hab. 2:14). Yet in all things, we are commanded "to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" (Eph. 4:3).

Today there are differences between Christian brothers and sisters concerning the nature and number of the spheres, mountains or domains of culture. This situation is best viewed not as a threat but an opportunity to grow in grace (2 Pet. 3:18). Great mutual respect is required if we are to be knit together in love so as to grow with a growth that is from God (Rom. 14:1-12; Col. 2:2, 19; 3:14). The holy mysteries of the Trinity and Incarnation compel us to admit that until Christ returns we "see in a mirror dimly" (Rev 4:8; 1 Tim 3:16; 1 Cor. 13:12). For the present time the ecumenical dictum, "In essentials, unity; in non-essentials, liberty; in all things, charity" can be our guide. Permeated by such virtues we can be assured that the Church's vocation to be "the fullness of him who fills all things in every way" (Eph. 1:23) shall be increasingly realized in our generation.

My plea would be that we all work together under the Lordship of Christ and accept that mountains, domains, spheres, or whatever we may call them and their number, are adiaphora (nonessentials in relation to salvation). From this premise Christ can bless a united Church. Experience teaches me that it is the only way "to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" (Eph. 4:6).

FRAMEWORK FOR TRANSFORM WORLD VISION 2020 & TW GLOBAL SUMMIT 2012
LENS # 1. SEVEN CHALLENGES RESPONSE

The vision for global change is strategic. God wants people to come to Christ and he uses people from all walks of life to be his agents for change in the world. He has brought many key leaders together who have a heart to be a part of God's transforming work. In order to maximize the impact of the 2020 vision, we have divided the teams into seven challenges. Each of the teams of leaders is moving forward with a strategic plan.

Please take a few minutes and read these strategies. Allow God to speak to you about your involvement in changing the world for Jesus Christ. Please see the end of this document for email addresses and contact information for the various leaders in this movement. Please feel free to contact them in order to learn more and be a part of what God is doing around the world.

1. IDEOLOGICAL CHALLENGE OF ISLAM

Facilitator: Joshua Lingel; Chairmen: Iman Santoso, SE Asia; Nam Soo Kim, East Asia; Jean Baptiste Roamba, French speaking Africa; Arthur Kitonga, Non-French speaking Africa.

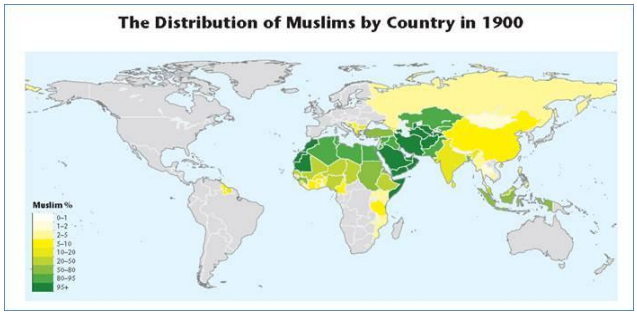

Our Challenge

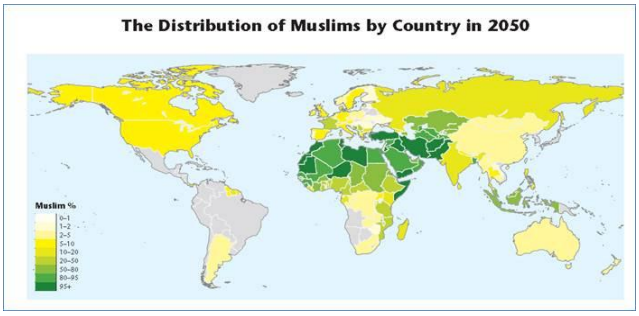

Islam has grown and moved East and West, competing for Christian souls and attempting to challenge or destroy the very foundation of the gospel and the church. Our response requires one hundred percent participation of global Christianity to fulfill Christ's Great Commission among the Muslims. Jesus has put Christians in a debt of love to Muslims. Every Muslim deserves to hear the good news of the gospel! The heart of the Christian is love, empathy, sympathy and compassion for Muslims.

In 1908 there were an estimated 230 million Muslims. At that time there were only twenty eight known missionaries working among them. Today, one hundred years later, there are more than 1.6 billion Muslims, seven times the number one hundred years ago. (See maps showing the distribution of Muslims by country in 1900 and 2050)[2]

The largest numbers of Muslims in the world are in Asia with one billion. Only 600 million Muslims live outside Asia. Only fifteen percent are Arabs or speak Arabic. Muslims represent a majority population in 57 nations. Muslims are in every country. At present, there is only one missionary for every 420,000 Muslims in the world.

The Muslim community presents a final harvest field that is very difficult to reach. Christians are persecuted for their faith in many Muslim nations. Islam is a state building religion, which exports the Islamic Revolution while defending itself from Christian influence. On the other hand Western Democracies often assist the spread of Islam within their own nations.

Our Response

We are called to make disciples of all nations by our Lord Jesus. Our response to the Transform World Ideological Challenge of Islam is to seek how to engage together to fulfill the Great Commission among Muslims.

Our Mission is to glorify God as His global church as a faithful, global witness to Muslims everywhere.

Our Purpose:

Foster international families of love, friendship, discipleship and mentorship.

Train and mobilize the global church to fulfill the Great Commission among Muslims.

[2] The Future of the Global Church by Patrick Johnstone, 2011, page 74ff,

Empower and provide a platform for a younger generation of scholarly practitioners to engage the Muslim world.

Assess existing initiatives as vehicles for fulfilling the Great Commission.

Mobilize Christian servant leaders, in every church, vocation and nation.

Focus intercession on the Muslim world.

Seek the support of Christians with means on the earth to seriously engage the Muslim challenge.

Our Expected Outcomes -- Ideological Challenge Vision 2020:

1. 80% of Churches have active training programs to reach the Muslim community.

2. There will be a strong, vibrant active Christian voice in the public square to counter destructive anti-Christian ideologies.

3. There will be comprehensive regional think tanks and cooperative networks to promote biblical principles and values and counter the advance of destructive ideologies.

4. There will be a Global network of Catalytic Christian leaders in unified alliance around the ideological challenge.

5. There will be 100 businessmen from each country to help structure and implement the challenge in each nation and internationally.

Our Request:

Recommend people for the Transform World 2012 Global Challenges Summit for the Muslim Challenge the following kinds of servants of God:

We all need to take the challenge seriously. Pray and ask God how he wants to use you. For the Transform World 2012 Ideological Challenge we are in the process of identifying, selecting and recruiting the seventy people from around the world who can come together in full agreement to work together toward the fulfillment of this mandate. Take a moment to ask God who qualifies for this assignment among your acquaintances and complete the following registration form.

- The Scholarly / Missional types that can write, debate, evangelize, train, plan, lead and go public in various languages. They should all speak English and be prepared to work together.
- Catalytic Christian Leaders serving in positions of influence including denominational Presidents, Pastors of large churches
- Kingdom minded well-endowed people and representatives of foundations.
- Scholarly types that are the Founder or President of an Organization who will finance the ideas of the Founder/President.

2. FAMILY CHALLENGE: AN INTENTIONAL FOCUS ON CHRISTIAN MARRIAGE AND THE FAMILY WITH A CALL TO INTEGRITY, PURITY, AND WITNESS

Facilitator: Matthew Ling

The Call

Both the Church and the Family are divinely created institutions designed for the purpose of glorifying God. However, they each have clear jurisdiction dictating their respective responsibilities. The family has the primary task of passing on Christian values to children and equipping them to be disciples to effectively represent the kingdom of God both now and for generations to come. The Church has the responsibility to win the lost and equip believers to advance God's kingdom.

Although the missions of the church and family are similar, to advance the kingdom by building disciples, the primary spiritual training of children was designed by God to take place in the home. When the church takes on that role, either by initiative or default, and at the same time doesn't equip parents and families to accomplish their God-given spiritual responsibilities, children suffer spiritually.

We believe the call of God of this challenge is to inspire and strengthen the family and to mobilize the church to view their training of families as part of their task of discipleship.

The Stake

Satanic attacks on the family began straight after its creation. Such attacks to break it up, and thus, thwarting God's purposes, never let up.

It is indeed alarming to watch the escalating demonic activities going on unabated and manifesting in various forms worldwide, including attempts to redefine marriage, the divorce pandemic, the exodus of Christians from their faith in God, the failure of Christian parents in evangelizing the following generations, etc.

What is really at stake for us here with the family? The glory of God!

The breakdown of a marriage, the most intimate of all human relationships, mars the display of the agape kind of love between God and His Body, the Church, to the world. It incapacitates the family from passing the faith from generation to generation. Furthermore, it thwarts God's plan in 'seeking godly offspring' (Malachi 3:15) to manifest Him.

The Church, the Body of Christ, becomes dysfunctional as Christian members of the family struggle with strained relationship. She is no longer able to enjoy the fruit of body life as'…each part does its work,' (Ephesians 4:16) to its maximum in order to help her fulfill the call to the world effectively.

Satan is trying to destroy the church by ruthlessly attacking Christian families. The challenge we have concerning the family is really the challenge to the glory of God. It is the glory of God that is at stake here!

Our Purpose, Convictions, and Vision

The Family Challenge with God's grace embraces the opportunity to help facilitate the Malachi 6:4 revival that's taking place in our world today.

Purpose: Our purpose is to contribute to the transforming of the church to inspire and equip families to build God's kingdom and to impact their communities for Christ.

We do not just aim to build Christian families for their own good, but also to equip them with the capacity to build the kingdom of God and make the purposeful impacts in the communities they are living in.

Convictions: This purpose is based on the following convictions:

1. The ultimate purpose of the family is to magnify God's glory on earth.
2. The purposes of the local church are (1) to worship God, (2) to live as a biblical community, and (3) to evangelise the world.
3. The church and the family are in partnership in building the godly home.
4. The life-long one-man-and-one-woman marriage needs to be intentionally developed.
5. The primary purpose of parenting and grand-parenting is to nurture faith of the next generation.
6. Children are to honour their parents.
7. Singleness within the church community is to be respected.
8. The Christian families are called to be faithful stewards of the resources (time, opportunities, and others) that God entrusts to them.
9. Home leadership is a key to effective church leadership.
10. Every family is created by God to be missional, and to be the salt and the light to the world.

Vision: We see the church leadership and the congregation jointly championing to inspire and equip the corporate church and the families on the biblical perspective of their respective roles, thereby providing the world with healthy Christian homes that proactively transform their communities.

The Pathway Forward

We believe that a complete restoration of the needed family emphasis is possible and will involve the following.

The family, the church, and their partnership. The family is to return to living according to the God-prescribed patterns. The church, tasked '… to prepare God's people for works of service, so that the body of Christ may be built up…' (Ephesians 4:12), must become the family-building equipping center. Also, the two 'wings' (the family and the church) need to learn to flap together in harmony for such restoration to take place.

The family-life revival. The success of the Family Challenge requires change in the heart conditions of the Christian family members and the corporate church. This is beyond human reach. We need God to infuse the power for the two wings to function effectively and efficiently. A strong prayer emphasis for the revival of the hearts of the Christian family members and the church must follow close on the heels of the family restoration process.

The Challenge

Attempts to restore the Christian family to its rightful place in different parts of the world by the churches and other Christian organisations to date have been sporadic.

The development of such endeavours in building families strong enough to halt the further slide of their collapse in the churches worldwide (let alone building these families strong enough to impact the community at large) is still very much in the infancy stage.

We firmly believe this Challenge will break many new grounds in our march towards building Christian families with the transformational capacity.

Expected Outcomes Family Challenge Vision 2020

1. National Family Challenge leadership teams are formed in all of the top 20 countries (U.S.A, Brazil, Mexico, Russia, Philippines, Nigeria, China, Congo (Democratic Republic), Germany, Ethiopia, Italy, United Kingdom, Colombia, France, Ukraine, Spain, Poland, Argentina, Kenya, and India) that make up 66% of the total world Christian population.

2. More than 30% of the churches in the above 20 countries are informed of the Family Challenge culture and have made a decision on this culture.

3. Family Prayer Movement will feature prominently (a key characteristic of a church) as it spearheads the efforts in spreading the Family Challenge emphasis globally.

4. The family ministry development systems on the national and local church levels are properly designed for use.

5. Model Family Challenge churches and families are found in all the nations where the national leadership teams are in place by the end of 2017.

The Strategies

Our strategic plan, among other things, will focus on the following.

Developing further the theology of family. A more cohesive theological framework will be needed to guide the family and the church leadership on what God is saying in the family arena of the church life.

Changing the family culture. Changing family culture is one of the toughest tasks we will face in this journey. The family transformational process requires reprioritization of family goals, reallocation of family resources, dealing with family struggles, etc. It is resource-consuming and depends on each family's unique capacity for change. Particular attention is needed on preparing the family properly for change through teaching and assurance of proper support infrastructures.

Changing the corporate church culture. A common tendency of the church in responding to a family-life need is to conduct a programme. This is often ad-hoc and stand-alone. Developing the desired transformational capacity of each family requires the church to do far more than that. It requires a paradigm shift whereby the church not only sees the worth of families in her midst but also puts a substantially heavier investment in manpower and other resources in equipping the families than it is currently doing. A strong and yet nurturing leadership is essential to lead the families and the church through the process of change.

Knowing the real family health in the church. Many church leaders lack a clear picture, or worse still, are ignorant, of the state of health of the families in their midst. Often, families are struggling under the weight of the satanic attacks unknown to the leadership.

Securing the commitment of church leadership. This is critical as it will determine how resources would be allocated in ways that are commensurate with the family-life needs. Often the pursuits of other corporate goals, such as church numerical growth, tend to push away the family emphasis. This will have to change in order to signal the needed emphasis on the family.

Raising a strong family-life with revival emphasis. The church must deliberately raise a concerted cry to God: 'Will you not revive us again, that your people may rejoice in you?' (Psalm 85:6). Unless God does this heart-change operation, there is not going to be the sufficient corporate will to effect the needed restoration.

The Bravehearts

The task ahead for the Family Challenge is indeed immense. There are no quick-fixes for the broken family cisterns.

We believe that a call has already gone out from God to a group of His servants living in different parts of the world to stand up together against the rising tide of satanic onslaught on the Church of Jesus Christ through the families. They are the 'bravehearts.'

God has been preparing over the years. These are those who fervently believe that only God has what it takes to restore the families and the corporate church. They refuse to succumb to defeat in the face of mounting family collapses all over the world. Such 'bravehearts' will press on even when intimidated by whatever Satan would try to throw in their way.

The tasks in the months leading to the Transform World Global Challenges Summit in November of 2012 will entail building the foundation of relationships among invitees for the Family Challenge Regional Facilitation Team, mutual discipleship on issues relating to the strategic plans, and equipping for post-conference implementation of the plans in various regions of the world. Above all, it will be a great time of convergence of hearts that we pray God will bring about for the momentous task that He calls us for.

Family Challenge Facilitator team members are to be characterized by the following:

1. Is committed to the mission and agrees with the Transformation Covenant of the Transform World.

2. Being a person of character and integrity.

3. Being a national or regional gate-keeper within your country with wide acceptance and recognition, with demonstrable and proven track record of influence beyond your own singular ministry.

4. Has the commitment to facilitate ongoing involvement in the Challenge for over the next 7 years.

3. ORPHAN CHALLENGE

Facilitator: Ruslan Maliuta with Anita Deyneka

Introduction

One of the biggest challenges facing the Christian Church today is the ever-increasing number of children growing up without the loving care of their parents and without knowing their Heavenly Father. Their plight can be called the Orphan Challenge. These children, totaling 153 million, according to current estimates from UNICEF, live throughout the world – from war torn Sudan to poverty-stricken India, from transitioning Ukraine to affluent nations in Europe and North America. If we brought all these children together – totaling 153 million, according to current estimates from UNICEF – they would comprise the 7th largest nation in the world … a veritable "Orphan Nation." If all the orphans stood together, shoulder to shoulder, they would reach more than twice around the planet.
God knows all orphaned children by name, and He has a purpose for each of them. He is the Father of the fatherless, and His dream is that the Orphan Nation will disappear from the face of the earth. This can happen only when each child has a permanent, "forever" family. "Father of the fatherless… is God in his Holy habitation. God sets the solitary in families." (Psalm 68.5-6).

The World Without Orphans (WWO) movement was born from the understanding of God's heart for orphans and His mission for the Church to care for them. We are launching a worldwide effort to ensure that every child can grow and flourish in a safe and loving permanent family. We believe the Body of Christ can help make this vision a reality. Although 153 million children may seem like a staggering number, there are 2.1 billion Christians in the world today. If all would come together in their churches, with their families, and as individuals, we could address the orphan challenge and bring closure to this escalating crisis.

Who Are The Orphans?

There is no easy answer to the seemingly simple question of "Who is an orphan?" However, the way we define these children has very important implications for our capacity to help them.

Historically, orphans were children who had lost both of their parents, usually through death. UNICEF has expanded this definition to include children who have lost one of their parents. The Bible seems to use the words "orphan" and "fatherless" interchangeably which supports a broader definition. Consider also James 1:27 that ties together caring for orphans and widows, single mothers. Contemporary child welfare practice focuses also on children who have lost their families through abandonment, even though one or both of their parents may still be alive. Therefore, in a broader sense an orphan is a child who has lost one or both parents or has been abandoned by or separated from them.

Some children, born with disabilities, become orphans because their families and communities lack the skills and resources to meet their special developmental needs. Still other children may be removed from their families to ensure their safety, protecting them from child abuse, neglect, and other forms of child endangerment. Many orphans grow to adulthood without permanent family connections, and they often "graduate" to the streets, homeless and jobless, being drawn into lives of crime to support themselves. The most vulnerable may be trafficked into various forms of indentured servitude in other nations. Orphan children may be considered "at-risk" in the most fundamental sense. Without the nurturance, support, and consistency of a permanent loving family in a stable, supportive community, orphaned children haven't got a chance.

How We Can Help? Vision, Mission, and Goals of WWO

The World Without Orphans (WWO) movement was begun as a promise to all orphans – that they will be given the opportunity to grow in loving and caring families and will know their Heavenly Father.
Our mission is to inform, equip, and mobilize the Body of Christ to help make this possible.
Our purpose is to give all orphans a passport out of the Orphan Nation into the joy of a better life.

"Religion that is pure and undefiled before God, the Father, is this: to visit orphans and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unstained from the world." James 1:27.

Several beliefs underpin the World Without Orphans movement:

- All children have inherent value in God's eyes and an unconditional right to holistic development, to enable them to live up to the potential that their God has given them.
- The very best environment for all children is a loving and caring family – parents, siblings, and extended family members for life …. a family to call their own and to come home to forever.
- God cares in a special way for the fatherless, and He commissions the Church, and thus every Christian, to do everything in their power to help orphaned children.

The World Without Orphans movement will promote a better life for orphans through the use of several global strategies:

The first is to inform the Body of Christ and its leaders, to broaden their understanding both of the problems faced by orphaned children and the potential ways they can contribute to devising effective solutions. We will provide research data on the status of orphans in different parts of the world, and we will disseminate information on the most effective, empirically supported models of caring for and serving orphaned children.

The second strategy is to mobilize. We seek to establish, promote, and sustain national, regional, and global networks that involve churches and their members, non-governmental service organizations, business communities, the media, and governmental agencies who, together, can develop orphan advocacy movements in their own countries and communities.

The third strategy is to equip. We will provide opportunities for our partner advocates to fully understand the special needs of orphaned children and the best resources and strategies to serve them. We will promote communication within and among orphan networks, helping advocates share their successes and failures and learn from each other as they design and test working models to improve services to orphans and families.

Our networks will share responsibility for a variety of activities to help achieve our mission. These include the following:

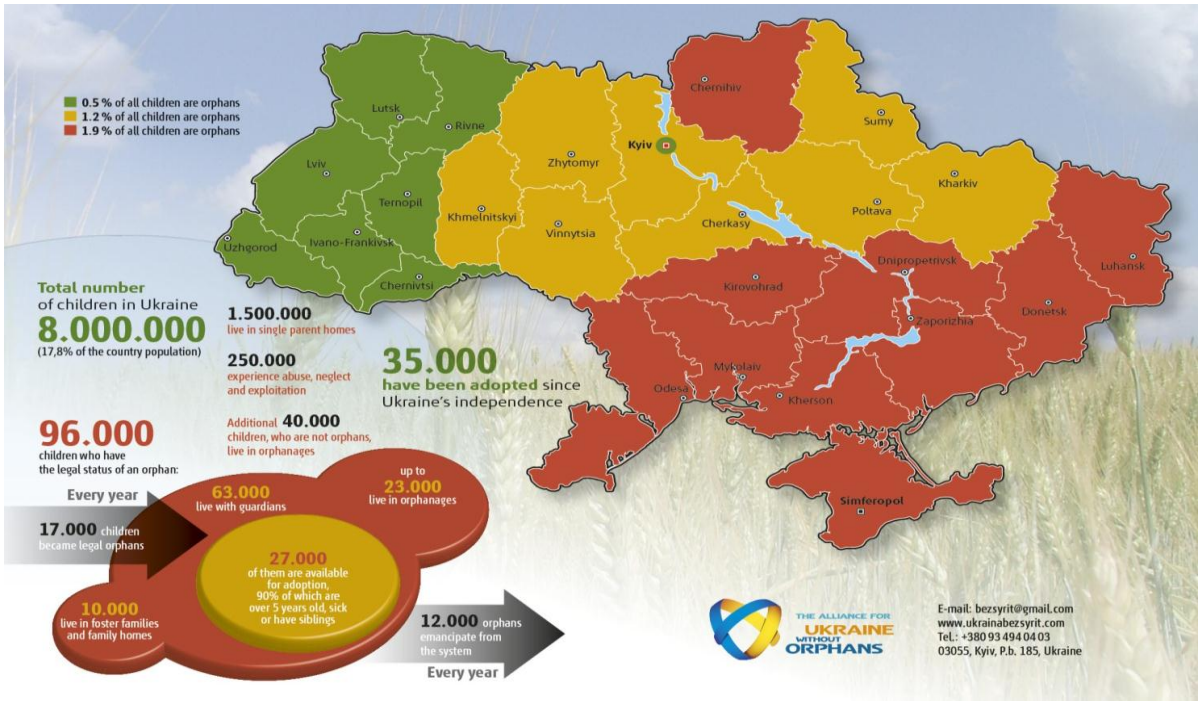

- We will access all forms of mass media, social networking, and publicity to make the nations of the world aware of the orphans and their needs.
- We will inspire prayer movements for orphans all across the world, where God can move on the hearts of His followers to bring them into their families. We hope to transform the global Body of Christ so orphans are no longer statistics, but names, faces, and young lives created by God.
- We will encourage and assist pastors and other church leaders to become ambassadors to establish and support orphan care and adoption movements in their own nations.
- We will help families understand how they can bring orphans into their families and their lives, through adoption, foster care, mentorship, guardianship, and other forms of family based care.
- We will create, compile, and translate the best resources available to train and empower families of all kinds to flourish in helping their children grow healthy and achieve their God-given potential.
- We will share information among all the world's orphan advocacy networks to encourage and inspire each nation as it moves toward the vision to see and live in a world without orphans.

The Orphan Assessment

The first step in resolving any problem is to understand it. There is an urgent need to complete comprehensive assessments of the presence and location of orphans in every country in the world so we fully understand the scope of the problem and the needs of the children, and develop the best possible solutions.

These assessments should include accurate and up-to-date information about the numbers of children living in orphanages and other institutions, children living on the streets, and children in other impermanent forms of care. We also need data about children who suffer from abuse, neglect, or exploitation and who have been removed from their parents, either temporarily or permanently, to ensure their safety.

An example of the findings of one such assessment, using Ukraine as an example, is presented below.

Armed with accurate information, orphan advocacy networks can begin recruiting and mobilizing advocates designing nation-specific strategies to begin to address this international problem.

Action Steps

Once each country understands the scope of the Orphan Challenge in their nation, it can develop constructive strategies to address it. The following guiding principles will underpin our work.

- Not all orphans need a new family. Many of them already live in families who can be strengthened to ensure permanence and safety for these children. We must support these families and the communities that care for them.
- There is a spectrum of models of care for orphaned children:
  - strengthening their own immediate and extended families
  - reuniting children in care with their own families

- adoption
- guardianship
- foster care

We need to build all of these options concurrently, to produce a range of family care options for a nation's children. We also need to encourage absent fathers and their extended families as placement options for orphaned children.

- Orphanages and child care institutions are the least effective and often the most detrimental forms of care for orphans. We understand the use of these facilities as emergency placement options for some children, but we should not consider them an adequate permanent placement for any child.
- If children have lost their own families and there is no hope of reuniting them, then adoption or guardianship should be the aim of our efforts.
- Careful and thoughtful planning should go into any nation's program model on behalf of orphans. Prevention programs at all levels is critical.

Following the Lord's favor, we will creatively use all means possible to motivate the global Body of Christ to a place of faith and obedience where caring for orphans and adoption will become so normal that many will think it's synonymous with following Christ.

Expected Outcomes Orphan Challenge Vision 2020

1. The global Body of Christ is aware of orphan challenge and developed an effective strategy of addressing it on local, national and global levels. Global Council is formed to advise the Church on critical issues regarding orphans.
2. Twenty four national movements are initiated and supported by majority of Christian churches in the country. The movements have specific measurable goals.
3. Paradigm shift from orphanage-based to family-based strategies occurred as manifested in the respective change of NGOs and churches' focus including funds distribution

4. POVERTY CHALLENGE

Facilitator: Hal Jones

The Poverty Challenge response will focus on solutions that lead toward establishing a framework for true transformation amongst the world's poor. The goal therefore is that the communities of the poorest of the poor and the churches amongst them be self-governing, self-supporting, and self-propagating without outside control or dependence.

Recent books like When Helping Hurts have helped to direct the attention of those concerned with the poor to well thought thru practical solutions like CHE, TCD, etc. that are now helping poor communities transform themselves.

The activities of this committee will be to:

1st research and report an assessment of poverty in their region or country that evaluates the status of the poor in the areas of 5 sectors: education, water/sanitation, health, family income, and food security.

2nd identify holistic solutions discovered for these needs that are using mostly local resources and personnel, empower the community, and have real exit strategies that do not leave dependency behind.

3rd come to the conference prepared to share findings and interact on best practices for solutions, prepared to engage other sector leaders in your country who attend the conference towards Holistic Transformation.

We eagerly look forward to the Lord leading us into significant steps towards transformation of the poorest of the poor thru this effort, working together in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Expected Outcomes Poverty Challenge Vision 2020

1. To build 20,000 model communities among 2,000 unreached people groups.
2. To engage 200 agencies in 20,000 model communities project with each agency working for 100 model villages. Global Hope Network International and Canaan Farmers School facilitative agencies along with potential others.
3. To involve 20,000 businesses to work with 200 agencies to eradicate poverty not with charity, but with empowerment and self-sustainability.

5. HUMAN RIGHTS CHALLENGE

Facilitator: Efraim Tendero

A. Introduction

A popular columnist and best-selling selling author has proposed that the world is now "flat"[3] providing everyone a level playing field where everyone enjoys equal opportunity in business and commerce. The reduction or removal of barriers between national borders has brought about the phenomenon everyone knows as globalization. Helped by improving technology, globalization will grow leaps and bounds by the day. While globalization has brought positive results it has also resulted in many forms of human exploitation, particularly on the most vulnerable sectors, like women, children and laborer. It is in these times that the discourse of human rights becomes relevant and compelling around the world.

The contemporary international human rights system emerged as a reaction by the international community to the Nazi atrocities committed on against the Jews and other ethnic groups. The Universal Declaration of Human Rights is the most important international document in the field of human rights. It provides a philosophical foundation for the universal defense of human dignity and reflects the resolve of the international community to promote human rights around the world. The principles of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights are based on a natural law understanding of absolute principles and norms.

The influence of post-modernism in the on-going discourse on human rights has weakened the natural law foundations for protecting human rights and human dignity around the world. Post-modernism has introduced the idea of cultural and ethical relativism in the discourse and diluted the effort at finding optimal and standard norms in the protecting human dignity. Therefore, there is an urgent need to restore the understanding of human rights based on natural law of absolute principles and norms. While globalization presents myriad of challenges in the area of human rights, it also affords opportunity where the principles established under the Universal Declaration of Human Rights may be truly be applied across a borderless world.

Our Mission

- Build up Christian transformational movements committed to defend human dignity and to build nations governed under the rule of law and justice .
- Influence the work of international (global and regional) organizations in the sphere of human rights, such as the United Nations General Assembly in New York and the United Nations Human Rights Council in Geneva.
- Create civil societies that promote respect for the imago Dei.
- Support and advocate for laws and governmental policies that promote human dignity and human rights.

[3] Thomas L. Freidman, The World Is Flat: A Brief History of the Twenty-First Century (Farrar, Straus & Giroux), April 2005

Our Vision

- Restoration of the natural human rights theory and practice as guiding principle in the discourse of fundamental human rights and human dignity within the context of globalization.
- Universal promotion of human rights against actions by governmental and non-governmental actors that violate and are contrary to human dignity, such as genocide, all forms of discrimination, all forms of exploitation, and violations of religious and other liberties.

B. Opportunities and Threats

1. Opportunities

The strong and consistent message of Christianity that man has inherent dignity as God's creation provides solid foundation for an unequivocal stance and influential voice in the discourse on human rights.

Globalization facilitates the spread in a borderless and interconnected world the universal values of human rights and dignity.

2. Threats

The truncated view of the Gospel that limits Christianity to the business of eternal destinies of human beings militates against involvement by Christians on issues pertaining to human rights.

Globalization opens up the discourse to competing world-views, such as cultural and ethical relativism, which dilutes the universality of values and norms, including human rights.

C. Fundamental Principles-Doctrinal Foundations

According to the Swiss lawyer Dr. Peter Saladin: "After two world wars and numberless demonstrations of inhumanity we can no longer cling to the anthropological optimism on which those systems rest without sacrificing our intellectual and moral honesty. But the whole idea of human rights is then left in the air; and the flagrant lack of basis is bound to result in a loss of credibility if a new basis cannot be laid down... So it is especially incumbent on Christians and the Christian churches to seek urgently for this new foundation."[4]

1. Genesis

[4]Wheaton '83, sponsored by the World Evangelical Fellowship, provided a platform for further clarification of the response to human need among evangelicals. In the book containing the presentations made at the "Consultation on the Church in Response to Human Need," edited by the co-presenters of the topic "Evangelism and Social Responsibility" a year earlier, Vinay Samuel and Chris Sugden, the final document titled "Transformation" reflects, by its very name, the call for societal transformation (Samuel and Sugden 1987:254-265).

The Bible indicates that each human being has been created in God's image. According to Genesis1: 26:"Then God said, 'Let us make man in our image, in our likeness, and let them rule over the fish of the sea and the birds of the air, over the livestock, over all the earth, and over all the creatures that move along the ground."[5]

According to Genesis 1: 27:" So God created man in his own image, in the image of God he created him; male and female, he created them."[6]

Those biblical passages are main foundations for the concept of human dignity. The concept of respect for human dignity is one of the main foundations for the concept of human rights.

2. Human Dignity

According to Christian Theologian, R.C. Sproul: "It is because God has assigned worth to man and woman that human dignity is established. Man's glory is derived, dependent upon God's glory for his own. It is because mankind bears the image of God that he enjoys such an exalted rank in the nature of things. From his creation to his redemption, man's dignity is preserved. He is created by One who is eternal and is made for a redemption which stretches into eternity. His origin is significant-his destiny is significant-he is significant."[7]

D. Historical Examples

Christian ethics, legal and political Christian doctrines have been the foundation for the concept of inalienable human rights. Christian activists, such as William Wilberforce, are great examples of the historical importance and inherent righteous influence of the defense of human dignity. Christian leaders, such as Charles Malik, co-founder of the United Nations Human Rights Commission, developed and implemented the concept of natural human rights. Rene Cassin, another author of the universal declaration of human rights indicated that its roots are in the Ten Commandments of the Bible.[8]

E. Issues

- Religious Freedom:
- Ethnic and Religious Discrimination
- Right to Life
- Immigration
- Trafficking of Women and Children
- Justice and Rule of Law
- Corruption
- Poverty

6. CHRIST'S MISSIONAL CHALLENGE: REACHING THE LAST & THE LEAST

Facilitator: Scott Middlebrook, Every Home for Christ; Chairmen: Dick Eastman, Elijah Kim

The mission of God's people to the world arises out of God's love for the world. The demonstration of God's love for humankind was on display in the act of giving His Son, Jesus Christ, to the world desiring that no human being should perish. Jesus made that possible by giving his own life as a ransom for many. Before departing to heaven from the earth Jesus commissioned His followers. Christ's missional challenge to his followers is to make disciples of the nations based on Mathew 28:19-20.[9]

". . . if the church does not disciple a nation, that nation will disciple the church. Ideas have consequences, and someone's ideas will shape society. Social networks that turn ideas into lifestyle will inevitably shape the institutions and life of a nation. If the church is not consciously incarnating the word of God, and thus impacting the world, then the ideas that dominate the nation will govern the church."[10]

Mission

Mobilize the global church to "go," proclaim, and express the Good News of Christ to those people, or peoples, who have never had the opportunity to know Christ.

Cultivate an attitude of cooperation throughout various ministries and across denominations in order to see the Gospel taken to the "last" person and "least" reached peoples.

Equip the global church with the resources to assist in the proclamation of the Gospel, with a particular focus given to providing resources that aid in the proclamation and expression of the Gospel to the "last" person and "least" reached peoples.

[9] Luis Bush, Catalysts of Evangelization, 2003, pages 253-257 "Over the course of the history of the church, the framework that emerges with greatest frequency for determining the major paradigm for mission is the Great Commission". . . . "the conceptual framework of the Great Commission texts is one method for defining missional action by agencies, churches and movements."

[10] Darrow Miller, The Task: The Great Commission in Response to Radical Islam and New Atheism 2012, page 132.

Raise up a focused global movement of prayer, addressing Christ's Missional Challenge as presented in Matthew 28:19.

Encourage creative strategies for taking the Good News of Jesus to those most in need around the world.

Purpose

To catalyze the global church to wholeheartedly participate in the mission of God in obedience to Christ's command to make disciples of all nations" (Matthew 28:19).

Values

1. The Great Commission must be understood to be of highest priority and a central focus for the church.
2. Without unity the completion of the task is less than favorable." Thus, the cooperation of all evangelical groups is essential to fulfilling our objective.
3. Since 'we do not wrestle against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the cosmic powers over this present darkness, against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly places' (Ephesians 6:12), prayer will be imperative for the removal of all obstacles that stand in the way of completing the Great Commission. The degree to which prayer is mobilized will be the degree to which the world is evangelized.

Environmental Scanning

Christ presented His followers with the explicit missional prescription to "go therefore and make disciples of all nations" (Matthew 28:19). This command, articulately given by Christ, was for followers of Christ to participate with the mission of God, with specific attention given to making disciples amidst their going.

Since the ascension of Christ, there have been many sincere attempts to complete the Great Commission. Each subsequent plan has attempted, through various means, to mobilize the church to take the Gospel everywhere and to everyone. Yet, despite these many efforts, and as the world grows at an exponential rate, the population of the lost around the globe swells, and thousands still today don't know one person who can tell them about Christ. A present challenge exists for the global church. Who, in their going, will go to those who have never heard the Good News before?

We live in a time in which resources (money, manpower, technology, etc.) are available in many nations throughout the world. We live in an unprecedented time when various organizations, each employing their various methodologies and strategies for proclaiming or expressing the Good News of Christ, have the potential to actually penetrate the barriers that have arisen in the past and to finally be successful in taking the Gospel to the last person and least reached peoples.

In this unique generation of opportunity, a desire to see the Great Commission fulfilled is not in and of itself sufficient to complete the task (though passion for its completion is indeed essential). Today, a conviction to see each person given an opportunity to hear the Gospel must be expressed through widespread unity across the church. Cutting across denominations and across the boundaries of respective ministry foci, a supreme ambition by all to take the Gospel to all people will require broad cooperation and coordination. Efficiency in our task will be maximized when the many existing plans to fulfill the Great Commission are executed in a spirit of cooperation. This means that the global church must welcome many ministry players, personalities, strategies, and competencies.

A primary requisite for a divinely-empowered response to Christ's missional challenge is an intensified emphasis on the task and efficacy of prayer throughout the church. As ministries unite in prayer with a focus on the Lord of the Harvest, unity becomes possible through Christ. Wide effective doors for the Gospel can be opened and obstacles can be removed.

Strengths

Past Progress

The current movement towards completing the task is built upon the successes of the past. In the last twenty years, significant progress has been made in mobilizing the church to focus on the "last" and the "least" reached peoples.

Emergence of the Prayer Movement

God is raising up a movement of prayer globally. This quickly growing movement will serve to undergird a fourth wave of missions to complete the Great Commission.

Weaknesses

Imbalance in Missionaries

Today only 1/10 of our missionaries are currently ministering to the "last" and the "least" reached people groups. Pioneer missionaries, sent to difficult places and regions, will be essential for the fulfillment of the Great Commission in places where the church does not yet exist.

Imbalance in Finances Given to the Completion of the Commission

Giving within the church for the completion of the task is weak. Of every dollar given by Christians for all causes, less than one penny actually goes to pioneer church planting among unreached peoples.

Opportunities

Resources

Today an abundance of resources exists for the completion of the Great Commission. With proper attention, financing a missional movement to the "last" and the "least" reached is possible.

Open Doors

In the midst of economic upheaval and transitions in the Middle East, the church today has a window of time and opportunity to reach people in some of the most difficult-to-reach areas of the world

Communication

Through technology, the global church has an enormous capacity for communication and coordination. Utilizing cutting-edge communication methodologies, the church has the potential to work together and exchange information in a dynamic way.

Threats

Separatism (Lack of Unity)

Oftentimes churches and ministries have the capacity to latently propagate an elitist mentality (mostly subconsciously). This sort of centrism, or myopic focus on only what

"we" each do, has the potential to be very damaging to the overall objective of completing the Great Commission.

Persecution

In many of the places where the task is the greatest, the persecution is the most severe. While persecution isn't a threat to the "kingdom of God," it does have the potential to intimidate dynamic missional expressions.

Prayerlessness

Being engrossed in the task without prayer will be ineffective in the long-run. Engaging God in His task is vital. Without prayer, our best strategies will tend to end up being humanistic.

Goals, Objectives, Tasks

1. Prioritize focus on peoples with less than 2% evangelicals and less than 5% total Christian adherents (unreached/least-reached as defined by Joshua Project).
2. Focus efforts and resources on those peoples who are unengaged as defined and identified by IMB, Finishing the Task and Joshua Project.
3. Raise up a new missionary force among the "4/14 window," the 1.2 billion young people around the world who are between the ages of four and fourteen.
4. Encourage the distribution of the Gospel in countries primarily comprised of the "last" and the "least" reached people groups.
5. Collaborate with various prayer ministries to unify efforts of prayer and evangelism, specifically sharpening the focus of various prayer movements focused on the fulfillment of the Great Commission.

Coalition Partners

Every Home for Christ (Dick Eastman) http://www.ehc.org/index.jsp

In 2011 there were 16 Million who responded to the Gospel. In places where no local church was present to disciple these new believers, pioneer missionaries planted 45,957 Christ Groups. That means that each day 63 Christ Groups were planted.

Finishing the Task (Paul Eshleman) http://www.finishingthetask.com

The mission is to form a global network of local churches, denominations, church planters and mission agencies that are willing to work together in partnership to see church planting initiatives launched among the 418 Unengaged, Unreached People Groups. These represent nearly 130,401,741 people are spiritually lost and helpless, like sheep having no Shepherd. Among them Christ remains unknown and unacknowledged.

These 418 are perhaps the neediest of the needy. They are unengaged, which means that no one church, no one mission agency... no one has yet taken responsibility to tell them of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ. The 418 are at the very heart of the unfinished Great Commission task.

There are now 691 organizations, denominations, and churches that have made commitments to Unengaged, Unreached People Groups, and 224 of them have actually sent workers to various groups.

Joshua Project (Dan Scribner) http://www.joshuaproject.net

This organization seeks to bring definition to the unfinished task of the Great Commission by highlighting the least reached people groups of the world. It seeks to answer the questions that result from the Great Commission's call to make disciples among every nation or people group: Who are the ethnic people groups of the world? Which people groups still need an initial church-planting movement in their midst? What ministry resources are available to help outreach among the least-reached?

Joshua Project gathers, integrates and shares people group information to encourage pioneer church-planting movements among every ethnic group and to facilitate effective coordination of mission agency efforts. Joshua Project compiles the work of numerous missions' researchers to develop a list of all ethnic peoples that is as complete as possible.

Center for the Study of Global Christianity at Gordon-Conwell Theological Seminary (Todd Johnson) http://www.gordonconwell.edu/resources/Center-for-the-Study-of-Global-Christianity.cfm

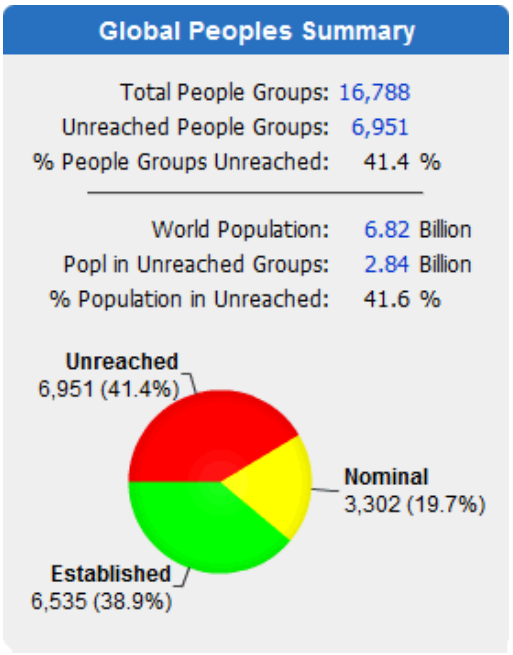

The Center for the Study of Global Christianity collates and analyzes data on church membership and evangelistic activities collected around the world by Christian denominations. Combining this with other relevant data, the center provides an authoritative view of global Christianity available to various constituents for research and strategic planning.

4/14 Movement http://4to14window.com

This organization seeks to rescue, reach, equip and raise up a new generation of the 1.2 billion people from ages four to fourteen to transform the world.

7. CELEBRATION CHALLENGE: IDENTIFYING, CONNECTING, AND ENCOURAGING 24/7 HOUSES OF PRAYER AND PRAISE TO GOD IN EVERY NATION.

Facilitator: Frederic Rowe & Susan Rowe

The "911" Call to 24/7 Praise and Prayer to God in the Nations

"On that day, I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down, and repair its damages; I will raise up its ruins, and rebuild it as in the days of old" Amos 9:11

As days have become increasingly intense with economic shakings, natural disasters, and political upheavals occurring almost daily, God is moving to awaken the church. Haggai 2:7 is playing out " 'And I will shake all nations, and they shall come to the Desire of All Nations, and I will fill this temple with glory,' says the Lord." The attacks on the World Trade Center on 9/11/01 marked a set time in history, a "911" call to the nations, for a parallel scripture in Amos 9:11, "On that day, I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down, and repair its damages; I will raise up its ruins, and rebuild it as in the days of old." The shakings and upheavals we have seen and witnessed since then only accentuate this "911" call to wake up the church. As such, we are endorsing and encouraging mobilization towards God's Word, and vision to repair the broken walls of intercessory worship in the spirit of the tabernacle of David in our cities and regions across the globe for spiritual transformation and Kingdom advance to "Prepare the way."

Vision

To mobilize and cultivate intercessory worship in the spirit of the tabernacle of David and build through relationship for individual and corporate transformation in the order of Amos 9:11, "On that day I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down, and repair its damages, I will raise up its ruins and rebuild it as in the days of old."

Mission: Encourage and strengthen altars of corporate cooperative prayer and worship in communities creating a safe atmosphere for personal and corporate intimacy with God

Scriptural Foundation: "On that day, I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down, and repair its damages; I will raise up its ruins, and rebuild it as in the days of old." Amos 9:11

Goals:

Encourage regular intercessory worship gatherings in cities and regions with the ultimate goal of 24/7 covering.

"My house shall be a house of prayer for all nations." Isaiah 56:7, Matthew 21:13, Mark 11:17, Luke 19:46

Promote unity through relationships by providing a safe place and atmosphere for worship, prayer, and declaration.

"And I, if I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all peoples to Myself." John 12:32. "You shall love your neighbor as yourself. On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets." Matthew 22:39-40

Encourage creativity and expression through the arts (i.e. dance, visual arts, flags.)

Develop houses of prayer in regions where none exist.

Build connections in and between houses of prayer and ministries in regions/nations through relationships and effectual communication

Scriptural Foundation: "The work is great and extensive, and we are separated far from one another on the wall. Wherever you hear the sound of the trumpet, rally to us there. Our God will fight for us." Nehemiah 4:19-20

"You also, as living stones, are being built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ... But you are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, that you may proclaim the praises of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light." 1 Peter 2:5, 9.

Goals:

Encourage networking and communication between key prayer ministries, houses of prayer, with a common vision towards Amos 9:11 and restoring houses of prayer in the spirit of the tabernacle of David.

Assisted through creation of the following:

- Website development for communication of key issues and initiatives;
- "secure" blog for sharing and communication of key insights, issues, and concerns;

- effectual e-mail system for communication of key global prayer alerts and information;
- regional/national/international conferences to build and connect houses of prayer.

Identify regional/track leadership that will build relational strength in and between houses of prayer/ministries involved in intercessory worship. "Of the increase of His government and peace there will be no end, upon the throne of David and over His kingdom, to order it and establish it with judgment and justice from that time forward even forever." Isaiah 9:7

Identify key leadership for the following:

- 12 regions correlating with Transform World regions
- 7 challenges: Ideological, relational/family, orphan, physical, human rights, Christ's missional, and celebration challenges;
- Specific tracks and cultural mountains: Arts, media, education, government, business. Tracks: Children, Youth, University houses of prayer, prophetic revelation, informed intercession, Hebraic roots.

Equip and empower for spiritual transformation

Scriptural Foundation: "And let us consider how we may spur one another on towards love and good deeds. Let us not give up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but let us encourage one another—and all the more as you see the Day approaching." Hebrews 10:24-25 NIV

Goals:

- Acknowledge and implement strategic prayer initiatives through agreement and cooperation.
- Build and develop a library of key educational resources to encourage prayer and spiritual growth.
- Build and develop teams that can equip and minister to house of prayer leadership to encourage and edify their roles and calling in their communities/regions/countries.
- Develop key training and sending centers to train up prayer missionaries and house of prayer leaders.
- Strengthen house of prayer participants and leaders through support, healing, deliverance ministries and regional/national/international conferences.

Honor Israel

Scriptural Foundation: "I will bless those who bless you." Genesis 12:3

Goals:

- Encourage gatherings on the Hebraic timeline. (Spring Feast and Fall Feast) "It shall be a statute forever in your generations" Leviticus 23:4
- Develop relationships with key ministries in Israel
- Encourage prayer journeys to Israel
- Support Isaiah 19 Vision

Core Values for this call is to SERVE:

S: Set time: We are in an appointed time, a "set time" for a global awakening and inspired move of God.

E: End-time awakening: Key to this end-time awakening is the restoration of the tabernacle of David spoken of in Amos 9:11, "In that day, I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down," and the raising up of united prayer/praise in cities, regions, and nations across the globe.

R: Relational strength in and between houses of prayer will be a mobilizing and strengthening force for houses of prayer and the watchman anointing in these tumultuous times: As we face increasingly challenging times, God has released a "watchman" anointing and call to gather together to build houses of prayer that will fulfill Habakkuk 1:5, "Look among the nations and watch-be utterly astounded! For I will work a work in your days which you would not believe, though it were told you." These groups are emerging across the globe. This call will help watchmen connect, identify, and communicate with each other.

V: Vision for houses of prayer is key to the harvest: Raising up "houses of prayer," prayer ministries/groups, and "towers" of prayer committed to the Amos 9:11 call and building 24/7 prayer in the spirit of the tabernacle of David is a vital key to unlocking not only a "great" awakening in the church but God's end-time harvest.

E: Equip and encourage: The purpose of this global mandate to raise up 24/7 prayer/praise in the spirit of the tabernacle of David is equip the church in this call, and to strengthen, and encourage those called to this ministry.

Our Challenge: Our greatest challenge will be building relational connections in and between houses of prayer. Much of the intercessory worship and prayer movement over the past several decades through houses of prayer have been focused on intimacy with the Lord, the 1st and great commandment Jesus spoke of in Matthew 22:37 "You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind." As the days become increasingly difficult and tumultuous, we are now in a season for the fulfillment of the 2nd great commandment which Jesus said is like the first in Matthew 22:39 "And the second is like it: 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' On these two commandments hang all the Law and the Prophets." In an age of increasing lawlessness, we need the building of relational strength in and between houses of prayer, ministry streams to help us turn the battle at the gate. God is calling the "awakened" remnant together to connect and build. It is a bridal call to the body of Christ to truly "prepare the way." The process needed is much like Nehemiah went through in rebuilding the walls of Jerusalem.

The Process: "A Nehemiah Restoration" (The steps below outline a process of taking the mission of this challenge into an achievable order).

Step I: Assess: View the walls (houses of prayer) in the nations.
Scriptural Foundation: "And I went out by night through the Valley Gate to the Serpent Well and the Refuse Gate, and viewed the walls of Jerusalem which were broken down and its gates which were burned with fire." Neh. 2:13

- Research where prayer groups/houses of prayer are located
- Research and identify needs of various houses and prayer streams
- Develop a core team 3-5 people to help identify key targets and committed to house of prayer development.

Step II: Identify: Identify key leaders to connect with and build relationship.
Scriptural Foundation: "Come let us build the wall of Jerusalem, that we may no longer be a reproach." Neh. 2:17

- Identify and build relationships with key regional and tract leaders willing to work together to build and connect/network houses of prayer in their various regions/cultural/ministry spheres
- Identify tract leaders that will develop and encourage specific issues within the house of prayer movement, examples as follows: prophetic tract, children's tract, informed intercession, Hebraic roots, communication etc.

Step III: Repair: Find, connect or develop houses of prayer in each nation, with particular attention to Capitol cities and strategic cultural mountains.
Scriptural Foundation: "So we built the wall, and the entire wall was joined together up to half its height, for the people had a mind to work." Neh. 4:6

- Identify capitols, nations, and cultural influencers that do not have house of prayer
- Identify 12 regional leaders that will build, encourage, and strengthen HOP efforts in their region
- Develop strategies to meet needs of new & existent HOP's identified in step 1

Step IV: Equip: Develop and identify materials that will resource and strengthen house of prayer mobilization.
Scripture: "Those who built on the wall and those who carried burdens, loaded themselves so that with one hand they worked at construction, and with the other held a weapon." Neh. 4:17

- Build a library of key materials to make available to house of prayer leaders and participants.
- Build a website/blog to encourage sharing of revelation/prayer focus and key issues for prayer.

Step V: Build: Hold key gatherings to encourage relational strength, impartation and revelation.
Scriptural Foundation: "The Work is great and extensive, and we are separated far from one another on the wall. Wherever you hear the sound of the trumpet, rally to us there. Our God will fight for us." Neh. 4:19

- Develop and hold key conferences focused on the "911" Call and building connecting Houses of Prayer.
- Encourage regional gatherings for corporate worship and building relationship.
- Encourage prayer ministry streams to adopt the "911" Call as a focus for their ministry.

Expected outcomes of the "Celebration Challenge:

1. Identify: Key Prayer Leaders/Catalysts
   - Develop a core team of 3-5 who will work closely for strategy and accountability through the coming seven years including next generation leadership.
   - Identify regional , challenge, cultural mountain and tract leaders
   - Identify house of prayer development in every nation/region with goal to multiply and connect relationally.
2. Connect: Establish and strengthen relationships and communication between houses of prayer and ministry streams by the following means:
   - Sponsor regional and international conferences focused on Amos 9:11
   - Email
   - Skype
   - Virtual Meeting venues over the internet, such as "Go to Meeting" by Citrix
3. Equip: Develop informational/equipping website and materials for houses of prayer

Conclusion: We are in very difficult and tumultuous times but also times of unprecedented opportunity. It will be an increasingly vital task for every Christian to know God more intimately as the times become more challenging. Restoring regular, ongoing, corporate gatherings for intercession and worship (i.e. intercessory worship in the spirit of the Tabernacle of David) will become an increasingly necessary and vital component of our Christian walk that will catalyze and engage heaven's answers to the challenges we face. By endorsing the biblical vision of Amos 9:11, "On that day, I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down, and repair its damages; I will raise up its ruins, and rebuild it as in the days of old," we will be promoting the very heart of God's purpose and destiny in individuals, cities, regions, and nations to "prepare the way."

LENS #2: SEVEN SPHERES OF CULTURAL INFLUENCE: STRATEGIC FRAMEWORK

The sphere concept becomes important for understanding God's purposes in transforming human societies in his mandate to disciple the nations. The Bible makes one thing clear: "…dominion belongs to the LORD and he rules over the nations" (Psalm 22:28). The domains or spheres of society are part of God's domain.

All spheres are assigned by God to build and bless the nation; to reveal an attribute of God himself and to carry out the purpose or mission assigned by God.

'The Domains are where God reveals Himself and His character. It's about bringing His great character and attributes down into everyday life.

That's what we get to do — pull the greatness of God out of the invisible world into the visible world so people can see His glory and go,

There are responsibilities related to each sphere/domain as well as a vocational mission statement for professionals working within that domain.

We have an injunction to renew wineskins as often as needed.

TRANSFORM WORLD GLOBAL SUMMIT 2012 ARTS SPHERE (INCLUDING ENTERTAINMENT AND SPORTS)

FACILITATOR: GILBERT HUMPHREYS

CHALLENGE RESPONSE:

Ideological Challenge – Christian public figures (artists, entertainers and athletes) have influences over a nation and these influences can be great tools in shaping the people's mindset, such as through the productions of more Christian TV series and films (or at least with Christian values), more releases of Christian songs, etc. Christian artists' fellowship also infiltrate the non-believers' community in the Entertainment industry and as more become believers, such influence will grow to help change the nation's ideology through people often seen as role models by the rest of the population. Many things can be done in arts too, such as creating arts centres or schools in various areas throughout the nation, particularly bringing back the cultural identity of the country. As an example, Islam is seen as Indonesia's culture by many; including the Indonesians themselves, for the fact that Islamic lifestyle has over-shadowed most of the native and original cultures and traditions in this most-populous Muslim nation. By pushing traditional arts and culture, Indonesians will get their identity back.

Family Challenge – The same influence can either be positive or negative. By targeting the people from this particular sphere of influence, support system can be built, particularly spiritual guidance, as to develop a community of Godly public figures that can be good role models for families across Indonesia. Unfortunately, there are still many Christian artists that find resort in divorces in facing their family problems. By raising awareness among this group of people, they will realise their roles in shaping people's points of view. People who see their favourite actors/actresses divorce tend to agree that divorce is common. In South Korea there had been reported suicides, copycatting some stars who committed suicide. Furthermore, families with children with interests in arts and entertainment can direct their children to be Godly and missionaries in these fields.

Orphan Challenge – Actors and singers can adopt children or give financial support, or, again using their influence, raise this particular awareness. Creation of art education for orphans can equip them for better future.

Poverty Challenge – Similarly, raising donations for the poor and leading a campaign to fight poverty is a responsibility of Christian public figures. Art workshops can be created too to help acquire some skills, and help direct them to create these artworks perhaps to generate a support system for themselves. Famous people actively involved in reaching out to the poor can also be great testimonies that many times touch others' lives, including those among the poor visited by the people from this sphere. Recording artists can also put away some from their record sales as donations or a funds (or a group of artists can join together to create sustainable funds).

Human Rights Challenge – Public figures, particularly those really influential, can voice out to help contribute in this challenge, advocating for the people in this challenge group.

Christ's Missional Challenge – Christian public figures become missionaries in their own fields. Celebrities can create a movement to evangelise fellow Showbiz professionals, such as Hong Kong's Sammi Cheng and the Philippines' Gary Valenciano, through whom many other celebrities know the Gospel. Christian musicians need to be missional too, not just writing and selling Christian or worship music, but also music that sounds secular (i.e: not mentioning Jesus or God) but in fact has Christian messages and values (e.g: spreading the message of love, no war, fighting poverty, Godly family relationship, etc). Another way can be looked at is opening CD shops that sell not only Christian music but also secular music to attract non- believers. Film professionals can also create such films and TV series, in addition to some that are purposely made very Christian in nature. Christian music can be promoted in secular way to regain church and Christianity relevance among the youths. Theatre groups can use seasons like Christmas and Easter (as people are more open to the Gospel during these seasons) to present Gospel-themed productions.

Celebration Challenge – Bringing back heart of worship and imparting spirit of worship among Christian artists, musicians, dancers, actors and others that will be reflected in their work.

Expected Outcomes ARTS 2020

- A community of Christian artists that are very Godly
- Creation of art centres/schools in various areas

- A wave of new believers in the entertainment industry
- Some consultation meetings for this particular sphere for continuous development of Transform World movement among people in this sphere (to take place from now to 2020)
- More evangelistic and/or Christian-valued contents in entertainment industries (TV, Music, Film programmes)
- Christian public figures mobilised in reaching out to the challenges above and to transform the world
- A movement of very-committed Christian celebrities worldwide who are not only proud to be believers but exercise their role as Christ's ambassadors in their field as well as to the general public, bringing Glory to God through their life

Conclusion

All the responses and goals above are expected to develop further – both in quality and quantity (new ideas) – during the global summit as leaders from this sphere gather together to discuss about strategies to transform the world. Furthermore, we will discuss further on how to sustain the Transform World movement in this particular sphere beyond 2020.

TRANSFORM WORLD GLOBAL SUMMIT 2012 BUSINESS SPHERE CHALLENGE RESPONSE

Facilitator: John Warton

Business Sphere Response to Seven Challenges

Ideological Challenge – business has already proven to be one of the most effective ways of creating a witness within Islamic cultures. When real business results in wages and taxes being paid and demonstrable training is offered for national employees in management or business skills, Islamic governments have often tolerated the Christian witness of these companies. But much more understanding is needed. More mobilization with training for those who will do it. There are networks and practitioners already engaged in this who can contribute to this challenge.

Family Challenge – business demands are often the cause of marriage and family breakdown; when Christian management reinforces these relationships among their employees, the emphasis is noticeable. Market-place ministries focus on this paradigm and can bring much to the business sphere.

Orphan Challenge – the business sphere holds the key to significant improvement of the condition of orphans, either within orphanages or among those not so fortunate to be in orphanages. Many directors of orphanages have realized the children must have a job waiting for them when they leave, or the years of nurture will quickly be wasted. This, like combatting prostitution or criminal recidivism, is primarily a challenge to the business sphere.

Poverty Challenge – Poverty will be overcome by the creation of employment. (See Acton Institute video – "Poverty Cure" http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=UxASM44gPlU).

Human Rights Challenge toward a Civil Society. Successful business depends on civil society, which does not exist in many parts of the world and seriously contributes to all the other challenges. Without civil society, the potential of the business sphere to remedy these challenges will be limited.

Christ's Missional Challenge – business as mission is a prime means of evangelism, especially in the context of work relationships. As employees who have come to faith witness outside their workplace and form churches that do evangelism, the impact is greatly leveraged.

Celebration Challenge – this challenge may speak to the spiritual heart of many business practitioners.

Partial list of the kinds of invitees to the Business Sphere who would make a real contribution to addressing the Challenges of the 2012 Summit:

- Owners of multinational businesses
- Leaders of marketplace ministries
- Leaders of BAM-type agencies, (ie. MED and SME organizations)

- Network leaders
- Venture capitalists and social entrepreneurs
- Denominational missions leaders
- Successful practitioners (ie. individuals who have used BAM to confront the very challenges we'll be addressing)
- Mission agency leaders who have added BAM to their portfolios
- Mission leaders of churches who have rallied significant numbers of their parishioners into BAM activities.
- Business people who may become funders of pilot projects identified at the Summit.

Expected Outcomes Vision 2020 Business Sphere

- Answers to questions about how to proceed in some project or field where they have not yet had success.
- Connections with knowledgeable leaders.
- A great sense of urgency and desire to "leave no stone unturned" in their efforts to face up to these challenges.
- A satisfaction that they stand with other international leaders who are fully aware of the challenges our world is facing and have declared so.
- Launching of alliances and networks that will have long and wide impact on these challenges around the world.

Conclusion

Business Sphere and Transform World Vision 2020 Business Sphere Strategic Framework

There is a high degree of relevance of the business sphere to most of the Challenges of this year's Summit, I want to clarify what the experience will be for those invited to participate in this sphere and what will be the incentive for them to come.

While some new alliances may be formed, most of the potential invitees I am thinking of have already formed communities of service to enhance their work – or rejected forming other communities as actual deterrents to their mission.

What I can envision, however, is an inter-regional exchange on these challenges that can truly catalyze much greater effectiveness in responding to them. For example, effectively alleviating poverty in China or India or a hundred other countries may require a keen awareness that delegates to this Summit from those regions can offer delegates from other regions. New alliances could be formed to do what heretofore has not been understood, or even dreamed of.

CHURCH SPHERE CHALLENGE RESPONSE

Facilitator: Rev. Dr. Richard Howell

Church Sphere Response to Seven Challenges

The distinctiveness of the community of Christ is found in the radical and challenging nature of God's dynamic and transforming relation with the people God has called to be his own. The Church is the people of God, the body and bride of Christ, the temple of the Holy Spirit. The global Church is transnational, transcultural, trans-denominational and multiethnic family, the household of faith. The Church as a called community of God's people has a special responsibility to be a sign, a foretaste, and an instrument of God's reign in the culture church inhabits.

Ideological Challenge – The issues of democracy and freedom of religion issues are critical issues facing the Islamic world. Social, economic, religious and political enslaving realities cause massive human misery in the global community. We must focus on the Church community through which these realities in public domain will be transformed. The reality of market is all-encompassing as its channels flow into every nation, city and village of the world. Market is changing the world. Market has no power against sin, evil and death despite its claims of universal spread and effectiveness. Transformation which the world proposes does not have Christ as its pattern.

Family Challenge – The institution of family is rooted in the nature of the triune God. Each person of the Trinity functions harmoniously in an unbroken fellowship of love with others. God has built in the most basic social relationship of the family as an undeniable feature of the humankind. As agents of God's Kingdom Christian homes must treasure spiritual values in the family. The family is the first transmitter of beliefs, behaviour and values that sustain communities. One innocent child lost to the faith generally results a family lost to the faith, and not many generations afterwards a whole community of unbelief is set in motion because of some previous particular neglect of parental duties.

The Church should be involved in rebuilding families on the basis of love, responsibility, commitment to the education of children abstinence from alcohol and marital fidelity. The purposes of God's kingdom are subversive to many of the aspirations and goals of the dominant market culture. The primary vocation for every family is not what we do to earn a livelihood but how we devote our lives, as Christ did, to seeking to advance the purposes of the kingdom of God.

Orphan Challenge – The statistics and condition of orphans are shocking. As HIV/AIDS and war zones becomes more widespread, and orphans increase we must proactively get engaged. Orphans require counselling, material, bereavement, medical and spiritual help. Good sound Bible based pastoral care is vital to ministry to persons and families dealing with orphans. Research on orphan's shows that many programmes have not effectively addressed the physical, cognitive, emotional and psychological plight of the orphans.

Attempt must be made to highlight the biblical mandate of the church's involvement with orphans and churches theology and missiology on the subject must be well informed and mature.

Poverty Challenge – There are millions if not billion families all over the world whose financial resources –including their educational and occupational skills, the circumstances of their environment at home and work, and their material belongings fall dangerously below those controlled by the average person or family in society; they are victims of poverty. The need is urgent for evangelical theology and action to address issues of material and financial resources. The transformational reflection and action also belongs where the triune God is redeeming his creation, among the poor and threatened places of creation. The communities need to obey the Gospel of Jesus Christ in value transformation.

One of the dilemmas of the poor is the loss of community (Job 22:35-36, Psalm 107:4-9, 33-36). The responsibility of the community is stated as 'to make them strong' so that they can continue to take their place in the community. Justice requires conditions such that each person is able to participate in society in a way that is compatible with human dignity. Justice also requires socio-political actions that enable the poor to help themselves and be the subjects of their own development and the development of communities. Neglect of the poor often flows from greed. Further, the obsessive or careless pursuit of material goods is one of the most destructive idolatries in human history (Ephesians 5:5). It distracts individuals from their duties before God, and corrupts personal and social relationships.

Human Rights Challenge – Democracy has led to gradual but genuine political empowerment of the weakest and poorest sections. Democracy faces new challenges, ethnic conflicts, fighting terrorism, adjusting to globalisation and adapting to the aspirations of a young society. For Christians, to withdraw from the political sphere will mean accepting by default the prevailing socio-political scenario in the country. The kingdom of God must not be reduced to extending democracy or free enterprise or socialism or promoting peace and harmony alone among the fallen humanity. Changing socio-political structures raise important and inescapable issues. The Bible calls for no one preferred form of civil government. All political forms can be misused. While a responsible republic or democracy at least protects political self-determination, it can deteriorate into anarchy. Christians must guard against two serious errors: first, that the world by structural changes can be turned into a new society or kingdom of God; and second, that improving socio-political structures is unimportant since we are called to proclaim the gospel.

Brahaminism uses the ideology of caste as a crucial instrument to dehumanize, divide, and dominate the productive majority. Different caste groups are separated from each other in matter of marriage, physical contact, food by rules of purity and pollution. Hierarchy- along with purity and power culminate in the Brahman. Power politics is at the heart of Brahmanism. The exercise of power necessarily involves conflict and resistance. The contestation for economic, cultural, and intellectual resources between the powerful and the powerless involves both dominance and resistance.

Christ's Missional Challenge – Transformational movement leads to renewal of the Church, since the emphasis is on the whole church taking the whole gospel to the whole world. For this to happen there is greater need for vision, united prayer movement, mentoring of younger leaders, study of the word of God and intentional discipling of nations.

The purpose of the Church, as "God's people and members of God's household," (Ephesians 2:19) is to be a blessing for the nations (Gen.12:1-3; 15; 17; Isa.42:6). The Church is called to exist for the sake of its Lord and for the sake of humankind (Matt 22:32-40). The world will be discipled the question is by whom! If the church does not disciple a nation that nation will disciple the church.

Celebration Challenge – Such is our human nature that we are active to the extent of being influenced by some affection. Our affections energise us to work in all affairs of life and inspire us in all our pursuits. The holy affections beacon us to look beyond all consuming "hurry" of winning. An appreciation emerges when we experientially know what gives pleasure or delight to God. This is best expressed in a four-line hymn of praise to God in the book of Revelation 4:11 is a celebration of God as creator of all things. "You are worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for you have created all things, and for thy pleasure they were created (Revelation 4:11 KJV)." We need to connect world wide

Likely Outcomes

- Connect with church leaders
- Share knowledge and expertise
- Engage whole Church in transformational mission

TRANSFORM WORLD GLOBAL SUMMIT 2012 FAMILY SPHERE CHALLENGE RESPONSE

Facilitator: Scott Turansky

Family Sphere Response to Seven Challenges

The first institution created by God was the family and it remains one of the most powerful influences affecting individuals, whether they like it or not. God even chooses to use the picture of the human family to demonstrate what relationship he wants to have people as Father. When one understands and embraces the needs of the human family and then harnesses the spiritual strength that comes from the family, powerful things take place for the kingdom of God. The family must be considered on several levels as the movement of God through Transform World increases. In particular, here are some responses to the specific challenges.

Ideological Challenge

When someone converts to Christianity from a Muslim family, they are often ostracized, persecuted, and condemned for that decision. It's imperative that the Christian community take on their role as families of God and embrace these people with the support that God intends the family to have. Therefore, building strong Christian families in the church is a key to success of Ideological Challenge. Jesus called people to leave their families for the sake of Christ and that decision is essential but quite painful for those involved.

Furthermore, one of the ways that Christians can witness to those from Muslim backgrounds is to talk about God's purpose for family. The biblical understanding of family is a strategic evangelism tool, especially when opposing ideologies demote women, and miss the potential when it comes to raising children, valuing extended family, and otherwise obeying God's mandates for family wholeness.

In addition, the concept of family provides non-threatening language that the Christian community can use in its various strategic programs and outreaches, providing a bridge to the often-closed Muslim community.

Family Challenge

Obviously the family challenge is directly influenced by the family sphere and the strength of the family opens the door for effective implementation of the Family Challenge objectives. Good theology comes before good practice. It's not the primary objective of the family sphere to make families happy. It's most important that the individuals in those families are learning to be disciples of Jesus Christ and then applying the principles of God's Word to relationships within the family. The true role of discipleship must prepare people to apply God's Word to their homes in practical ways, otherwise a spiritual disconnect takes place between the church attendance and the home environment.

Because the Family Challenge helps churches strengthen families, it's important to equip church leaders with wisdom to discern the right amount of focus given to the health of the home in the midst of church life as well as provide specific tools and training to church leaders as they equip those families.

Orphan Challenge

One of the tremendous strengths of the family challenge is to use the Christian family to reach out and embrace those who are less fortunate. In fact, when a family is growing in Christ as a family, they develop a strong desire to be an evangelism and discipleship center as a family. They then can be a resource for orphans. The Christian family can help finance the work of those who minister to orphans. The ultimate solution for the orphan challenge may best be to seek ways to close all orphanages and funnel children into Christian homes. The Christian family can become the new family for those who have no home. No matter how the orphan challenge is met, the inclusion of families at each step in the process will be strategic for sharing the truth of God's love. Deep pain from childhood hurt is overcome through God's grace and that healing often takes place as orphans come into direct contact with new Christian families. Models are then discovered for good marriage and parental care that may be missing from the orphan experience.

Poverty Challenge

Financial hardships pose tremendous pressure on individuals. Understanding the family as a factor can help those who are working to meet this challenge. Sometimes family breakdown contributes to the cycle of poverty and solutions for healing and repair of family structure become imperative. Keeping families strong can also help prevent family breakdowns from complicating an already difficult economic environment for many. Furthermore, as people suffer in the cycle of poverty, families can be part of the solution, providing resources, support, and encouragement to those who suffer. The family is one of God's sources of hope for those who are discouraged and suffering. It is a valuable institution that can help people find strength, wisdom, and guidance as they face the very difficult pain of poverty.

Human Rights Challenge

When people are mistreated, they experience deep internal struggles touching the most personal areas of the human heart. God's grace is right there in the midst of the struggles to protect people and guide them forward. One of God's graces is the human family that can be a source of safety, support, and care. The family sphere must bring practical and tangible support to those whose loved ones are experiencing mistreatment. In addition, sometimes the family itself becomes the persecutor, further contributing to the mistreatment of people. Careful work from the family perspective provides new teaching, biblical foundation, and tangible strength to families and to individuals who are experiencing injustice.

Christ's Missional Challenge

People most often come to Christ through relationships, not through programs. Thus, the family can function as a primary vehicle for evangelization for the world. As families view their role and responsibility to work together to share the love of God, powerful things take place. The home is a strategic place to demonstrate practical Christianity. When others see the genuine nature of a person's faith worked out in the challenges of home-life, a true witness is produced. One of the most effective evangelism tools today is the Christian family and it provides huge practical resources for people to share Jesus with others.

Celebration Challenge

The family is under tremendous pressure today. Satan loves to steal, kill, and destroy and one major arena that he works is in the area of family life. Much prayer is needed for a revival in the human heart. People say that they want to follow Christ and it's often easier to do so with friends or strangers, but when someone returns home, the web of habits and relational challenges makes living out one's faith difficult. A spiritual battle takes place in the home that often determines the strength of the individual in other places of life. The family sphere is not only the target of prayers, but families must learn how to pray themselves and for the world, so the Celebration Challenge is placed in a strategic practical place where it can facilitate family worship and intercessory prayer for others.

LIST OF CANDIDATES

- Church leaders
- Denominational Ministry Leaders
- Seminary leaders, especially those in positions of Family Ministry
- Resource partners who emphasize tools for strengthening families
- Christian Families themselves

- EXPECTED OUTCOMES VISION 2020 FAMILY SPHERE

- a clear biblical theology will drive the family sphere forward instead of relying on fad or pop solutions that have limited value.

- churches will view their biblical mandate to disciple to mean more than reaching individuals for Christ, but will also include the training of those individuals in their roles in family life.

- families will view themselves as strategic evangelism and discipleship centers so that members of the family are growing and then their impact on others is enlarging.

- ministries emphasizing the family will find greater acceptance of their tools and resources as families seek them to be more effective.

- networking of churches who want to do more family ministry will increase in order to empower the institution of the church to partner more directly with the institution of the family.

CONCLUSION

The Family Sphere is strategic for the goals of Transform World 2020. Customs and cultural differences find great variety within the family unit. Yet, God's Word brings practical solutions to the family that impact every culture and society.

Building strong families and then harnessing that power for world evangelism produces huge results that all must recognize. No challenge can move forward with effectiveness without seeking to embrace the needs and strengths of the family in every culture.

GOVERNMENT SPHERE RESPONSE TO SEVEN CHALLENGES

Facilitator: Art Lindsley

Government is instituted by God. In Romans 13, government is twice called a "minister of God" whose primary role is to use the power of the "sword" (Romans 13:4) to bring justice to those who practice evil. In I Peter 2:14, the government's task is summarized as "the punishment of evil-doers and the praise of those who do right." Certainly, rulers should punish crime and uphold what is good. There is great difference of opinion on how much government should "do good" in society and how much should be left to the Church and non-profit organizations. There are certainly Biblical calls to raise up godly rulers (Ex. 18:21, Deut. 1:13, Prov. 24:6) that can rule wisely. There are also warnings about rulers who usurp too much power (I Sam. 8:10-18, Rev. 13:1-18). So we must continually ask as we examine the various challenges, "How much should government do?" and "How much should the Church and other faith-based ministries do?" Generally speaking, government can be inefficient (large bureaucracy) and impersonal. Often solutions to problems are better handled locally (principle of subsidiarity) by people who know the situations more thoroughly. However, there are important things government can and should do.

I. Ideological Challenge of Islam

A. Foreign Policy: Pursue foreign policy towards Muslim countries that respects Muslim culture and upholds human rights.
B. Religious Freedom: Promote religious freedom towards Muslims allowing them to practice their faith openly without persecution.
C. Human Rights Violations: Bring government influence to bear where Muslim countries abuse the religious freedom of non-Muslims or Christians.
D. Preventing Terrorism: Fulfill the government's role of protecting its citizens by preventing and punishing terrorist activities.
E. Free Speech: Protect free speech to permit open discussion between Christians and Muslims about our ideological differences.

II. Family

A. Faith-Based: Through government channels, encourage faith-based programs that support families.
B. Marriage: Protect marriage from the attempts to redefine it. In the USA this might involve a Marriage Protection Amendment. Abolish any "marriage penalty" or taxes that burden families.
C. Divorce: Educate citizens on the harmful effects of divorce. Pursue mutual consent legislation in order to end a marriage and stricter enforcement of divorce settlements where children are involved.
D. Broadcast Decency: Support laws against broadcast indecency on radio and television.
E. Abstinence Education: Encourage "abstinence until marriage" education.
F. Pornography: Enforce laws against pornography.
G. Sex Trafficking: Support legislation against this practice and encourage enforcement of already existing laws.

III. Orphans

A. Prevention: Study factors that lead to orphanhood, including abandonment, sale of children for financial gain, as well as war and death of parents.
B. Parents: If parents are living, and children would not be at-risk living with them, encourage them to take responsibility for their children, rather than keep them in orphanages.
C. Orphanages and Foster Homes: While these may be necessary, work to make them short-term and transitional, pushing for guardianship or adoption. Ensure they are safe and care effectively for children's physical, mental, and emotional health and educational needs.
D. Siblings: Establish policies to keep siblings together where possible.
E. International Adoption: Establish laws to protect prospective parents and ensure the safety of adopted children.
F. Special Needs: Give special consideration to those with special needs.

IV. POVERTY CHALLENGE

a. Relief: Provide relief for those in dire circumstances needing food, water, and shelter – preferably through churches and private channels rather than government programs.
b. Education: Provide educational opportunities enabling children to develop their skills and gifts.
c. Development: Advocate laws that encourage free trade, open markets, and private property rights.
d. Ineffective Aid: End ineffective aid that doesn't help countries because of corrupt government officials. Work with NGOs to provide the aid directly to where it is most needed.
e. When Helping Hurts: Guard against well-intended policies that attempt to help people but actually hurt development already happening in needy countries (See the Chalmers Center for guidelines).
f. Discourage Dependency: Help when immediate need is evident but encourage human creativity and entrepreneurship where possible (i.e. microloans and other initiatives).

V. HUMAN RIGHTS CHALLENGE

A. International Consensus: Encourage agreement on standards of human rights, including: religious freedom, opposition to slavery and torture, freedom from arbitrary arrest and detention, fair and impartial trial, freedom from discrimination, and equality before the law.
B. Right to Life: Encourage legislation protecting the unborn, the aging, and those with special needs.
C. Immigration: Establish wise immigration policies.
D. Human Trafficking: Establish and enforce laws in opposition to slavery and human trafficking of any kind.
E. Corruption: Work to eliminate corruption from government or other institutions.
F. Rule of Law: Uphold the rule of law, including rights to private property.

VI. MISSIONAL AND VII. CELEBRATION CHALLENGES

Freedom of Religion: Establish and enforce laws that uphold the religious freedom.

- Freedom to Speak: Protect the freedom to speak publically about one's religious beliefs, including evangelism.
- Freedom to Believe: Protect the freedom to change religions.
- Freedom to Gather: Protect the freedom to gather privately and publically.
- Freedom to Pray: Protect the freedom to pray and worship.

EDUCATION SPHERE RESPONSE TO SEVEN CHALLENGES

Facilitator: Yonngyu Lee

Ideological Challenge – Education, more than any sector in society, is the best tool for individual and social transformation in Islamic cultures. Whether it is through teaching English as a second language or teachers modeling moral and ethical behavior inside and outside the classroom education avails the most powerful tool for transforming the minds and hearts of Muslims all over the world, Teachers in computer science, Business Administration, and English have been in high demand in the Muslim world and when combined with outstanding Christian schools in areas where they are permitted or tolerated, they serve as critical vehicles for mission work and socio-cultural transformation. The increasing number of Western/America campuses opening in Muslim countries is another indication of the opening up of these communities to Western-style education and a great opportunity for mission-minded teachers to be involved in Kingdom work. To nurture a new Christ-loving generation is an essential move for enlarging the Kingdom in the land of Islamic influence.

Family Challenge – In the context of underdeveloped countries, the uneducated often do not have opportunities to think for themselves and actualize their God given talents. When women are educated in specific areas that affect their lives directly, for instance, their families flourish and communities grow. Providing basic nutrition and life skills, along with biblical principles for raising children, can be a great catalyst to healthy families and communities. In the context of Western or developing countries, the family relinquished its critical role in education to secular education and Sunday school. It is important to encourage every Christian father to participate in teaching their children with the Bible and encourage parents to be leaders of bible study and worship leaders at home. The Western churches are losing their products of Sunday schools in colleges and universities; only 15 percents survive statistically. In many Asian societies the discords and hurts between generations expedite separation of the youth from the church. The churches need to assume the task of generational reconciliation in the family realm.

Orphan Challenge – The education sphere is one of the best tools for lifting orphans out of a life of misery and danger and providing Christian instruction as part of orphan care builds up a foundation on which to not only build a future but to influence their communities later. Christian schools and churches should be at the forefront in taking in orphans by caring and educating them holistically. Volunteer Christian teachers and Christian job training centers co-working with orphanages to ground orphans in Christian faith, along with character and job training, can be a great support towards their future.

Poverty Challenge – A child's path out of poverty is often through education. In order to stop the vicious cycle of poverty experienced by many in the underprivileged regions, educational opportunities for job/skill training and formal education have to be availed especially for children and youth. Churches, mission organizations, and Christian non-profit organizations committed to establishing local schools will be pivotal in helping pull families out of poverty. Introducing e-learning for underprivileged communities and areas can be supportive in this effort. Re-education for Christian teachers and pastors in mission fields is an urgent task, as well. Education for government officials through Christian educational institutes would open a door to solving out the poverty problems.

Human Rights Challenge – This challenge in underdeveloped or developing countries can be overcome through education as children and youth learn about their rights and how to live in community, which might mean the sacrifice of one's rights and privileges for the good of another. Historically we can witness that learning and understanding the biblical concepts in equality, liberty, and human rights for every person promoted dialogue and awareness necessary for social transformation.

Christ's Missional Challenge - Christian education is a foundation for shaping and change hearts and minds for life. As children get to hear and see Christ's love modeled by teachers, they develop habits and ideas that they carry with them throughout their lives. Christian schools and universities in mission fields are important companions for mission work and Christian teachers are great partners of mission organizations and churches. The impact that a Christian teachers' faith has for witness is great especially in Asian and African societies where elders and leaders hold respect and authority. Re-educating and reviving Christian workers in the mission field indispensable. Leaders grown out of Christian educational influence will serve as a great vehicle for transformation.

Celebration Challenge: Raising up a new generation for harvest is the key of the challenge. Christian education can be focused on serving that purpose.

Networking for the purpose of sharing resources and experience, and channeling manpower and funds to appropriate and significant projects worldwide

Conclusion

The education sphere is central to this year's summit as it is a foundation upon which knowledge and morality are cultivated for a lifetime. Each participant has a key role to play in sharing knowledge and values with others on ways to use knowledge and skill training for transformation. Everyone is a potential teacher and any opportunity we get to influence children and youth we should see it as an opportunity of a lifetime. Christians need to re-dedicate their efforts towards redeeming education for children. Mission work can be enriched by accompanying with Christian educational institutions.

MEDIA SPHERE RESPONSE TO THE SEVEN CHALLENGES

Ideological Challenge of Islam

The challenge of Islam is twofold: it represents one of the rapidly growing religions in the world, and Muslims are some of the most difficult people to reach.

Media can respond on two levels. First, media can be used to educate and mobilize the church on how to speak the language of the culture in effective and respectful ways that build bridges for Muslims to come to the Good News and saving knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. Jesus is already revered as a respected prophet in the Muslim world. And the Koran calls on Muslims to seek out followers of the book.

Media can also be used to directly reach Muslims whether in printed form that is distributed personally, in broadcasts that are not limited by geographical borders, or in new and innovative ways that cross cultural boundaries by way of the internet and other new media.

Family Challenge

In many ways much of media has been used as a tool of the enemy to methodically and systematically destroy traditional social norms regarding marriage and family. The traditional church strategy has been to denigrate, shun and boycott the media.

We believe there's a more redemptive strategy. And the strategy is already underway.

It's about creating entertainment that encourages and strengthens families and faith. Faith-friendly and family-friendly television shows and films are steadily growing in quality- and subsequently--in their outreach.

Redemptive entertainment is no longer about reaching and equipping Christians—which is a legitimate biblical strategy. It's now starting to catch the attention of the mainstream—which is key to the Great Commission.

In our efforts to move forward we should not ignore effective strategies used to promote worldly agendas. One of the most successful "campaigns" has come from the homosexual community. In our lifetime they have used media to turn a social stigma into a social norm. One by one, they slowly and methodically introduced homosexual characters into television shows. At first, it was a shock. But over the years, they patiently persisted. Their strategy paid off. Homosexuality is now publically accepted.

It's been said that change throughout history begins with the philosophers, is communicated by the artists (including the media), becomes culturally accepted, and finally impacts governmental legislation. We've seen this come to pass.

The question before us now: Can we use similar strategies to bring redemptive, Godly models of family and marriage back into our societies? Healthy families are foundational building blocks of healthy communities and strong nations. Healthy families nurture and launch individuals who can be used of God to influence others and bring transformation to their world. Media should play a role in this process.

Orphan Challenge

Connecting media professions who have the capacity to raise worldwide awareness of the challenge of the orphans to the visionaries and organizations who understand the needs of the orphans will be a critical key to informing , mobilizing and equipping the church to meet this global challenge.

Indigenous journalists and media producers who can meaningfully present their local and regional needs to the body of Christ should trained, equipped and connected to the larger media outlets. YWAM's GrassRoots News is a model of this

Poverty Challenge

The exciting trend of media—especially social media—is empowerment. Media is no longer the dominion of moguls—it's become the domain of the masses.

The power of YouTube and other social media goes far beyond fame. It's about raising awareness, and empowering people to find their voice. It's about connecting ideas that work.

Christians should be the innovators in this arena. No one else has our heart for the poor. And we have the biblical mandate to reach them.

As we use new media to empower, we can also look to examples like the movie Slumdog Millionaire that won an Oscar for Best Picture and raised worldwide awareness of poverty as well as orphans.

Human Rights Challenge

While the final outcome of the Arab Spring is still in process, there's no question that media played a key part in the revolution spreading across the Arab world. Traditional media was used to expose atrocities, but it was new media such as Twitter and Facebook that was used to quickly organize protests and develop lines of supplies and initiate strategies.

The use of new media to facilitate revolution is a new phenomenon—unprecedented in history. Christians were the original ones who turned the world upside down. What can happen if we as Christians tap into the power of new media to champion the cause of human rights?

Christ's Missional Challenge

The Bible says there is coming a day when the glory of the Lord covers the earth as the waters cover the sea. The Great Commission challenges us to go into all the world.

Never before has this been more practical or more probable than now. Through the global footprint of media and new media (mobile media, internet, etc.) it is now conceivable that we could literally go into all the world to preach the gospel.

Celebration Challenge

What if we could use the internet to connect Christians around the world in prayer? It's already happening.

What if we could use new media to reach the formerly unreached through mobile media—and pray for them? It's already happening.

What if we could unite and focus prayer toward specific needs of the world? It's already happening.

We're in the nascent stages of something truly significant. Could this be part of a global awakening?

Expected Outcomes

Collaborative alliances will be launched between media, business, church , family, and government leaders.

New relationships both personal and organizational will be established among media professions that will have long lasting and far reaching impact for these Global Challenges and beyond.

Existing media resources will be identified and a strategy established for facilitating their use on an international scale. This will allow the body of Christ to more effectively steward its resources by focusing on new needs rather than duplicating it's efforts.

Strategies will be addressed for training and equipping media makers in the developing regions who can serve their area's needs by, among other things, awakening the Body of Christ with documentation and progress reports about how the Global Challenges are being met

Strategies to establish formal and informal networks to disseminate relevant materials through Christian and secular channels will be developed.

RESPONSE TO THE SEVEN CHALLENGES FROM THE VIEWPOINT OF RAISING UP THE 4/14 WINDOW GENERATION INITIATIVE

Facilitator: Shiferaw W. Michael

Ideological Challenge: the 4/14 Window Initiative provides one of the best, if not the best, tools and opportunities for the Bride of Christ to combat the ideological challenge that Christianity faces today. The church has, in the 4/14ners the most numerous, most responsive and most malleable mission field under its armpit-. The church, together with the family, has had the opportunity to make this group reach a stage of maturity so that as the Bible puts that they "will not be tossed to and fro and blown about by every wind of doctrine, by people's trickery, by their craftiness in deceitful scheming" (Ephesians 4:14). The church also has, in the same group, a massive force in which it can sow, with little or no pain, the "debt of love" of God for people outside the Christian faith so that an effective army is raised to reach their counterparts and beyond in the regions and places of the world that generate and export ideologies that are counter to the spreading of the good news of Jesus Christ.

It is probably correct to say that the strength of the ideology countering the Christian faith lies not so much in its own but in the church's neglect of the 4/14ners.

Family Challenge: It is the intention of God for each child to be born to loving parents and to grow in this secure, nurturing and caring environment.[12] It is in the family, tasked by God for the care and nurture of children (4/14ners) that human character is formed. What happens to the child during the formative years of life leaves the biggest and indelible mark on the physical, cognitive, social and spiritual development of the child. This mark, be it positive or negative, follows the child for the balance of her/his life and beyond. These marks, negative or positive are seen passing from generation to generation. One of the "broken walls" in the ministry of the church is the family wall. The 4/14 Window Movement Initiative is call to the church to build, equip and empower the family as it is a call to equip, empower and mobilize the 4/14ners; for without a healthy family, there can hardly be healthy 4/14ners.

As rightly noted in the family challenge article in this prospectus, the church becomes dysfunctional as the family becomes dysfunctional. This has its ripple effects in almost all of the challenges identified in the strategic framework

[12] God's Heart for Children, Viva Network

Transform World Vision 2020 but mainly in the Orphan, Poverty, Human Rights and Christ's Missional Challenges.

Orphan challenge: All orphans are 4/14ners and the brunt of being orphan is primarily on the 4/14ners. Growing as an orphan deprives children of almost everything God intends them to have during their early years of life- security, love, care and nurture. One of the things that the 4/14 Window Movement does is to show Body of Christ the magnitude and the dire consequences of the orphan challenge. It also reminds the Body of Christ of its biblical mandate on the matter and the opportunities that lie for it to win this inexhaustible goldmine for Christ and make them disciples of Jesus Christ and farmers in God's vineyard.

Poverty challenge: The poverty challenge is, with all its deplorable consequences and dehumanizing effects, entrenched in the majority world. Statistics show us that the majority in the majority world are the 4/14ners. Hence the poverty challenge is mostly 4/14ners challenge. Poverty cripples all aspects of human development and robs the future from those that are our hope future, the 4/14ners. The 4/14 Window Movement informs the church and all others about the realities of children and youth that are under the yoke of poverty and challenges all stakeholders to severally and jointly work to break the cycle of poverty. The Movement also informs the church about its biblical mandate in addressing the issue of poverty. The alleviation of poverty in the majority world goes beyond fairness or justice; it is also a prerequisite to the prevalence of peace in the world. The fulfillment of the Great Commission, in part, also depends on the response of the Body of Christ to the poverty challenge facing the 4/14ners. It is equally true to say that failure to address the poverty challenge by the Body of Christ opens the way for other ideologies to win the hearts and minds of the 4/14ners in the majority world. The 4/14 Window Movement, by painting the picture of the poverty challenge in the majority world, challenges and encourages the church to take proactive measures on the matter.

Human rights challenge: According to the original plan of God human development has to occur and operate in four areas of relationships "...relationship with God, with self, with others and with the rest of creation".[13] Proper understanding and commitment to and proclaiming this plan of God by the Bride of Christ is a sure way to combat the many and varied human rights challenge that prevail in the world today. A person who has the right relationship with God loves, obeys and fears God and these are manifested in her/his everyday life. A person who accepts the fact that he has dignity simply because he is created in the image of God values himself. Such a person will values other fellow human beings who may be different from him just because they are human. A person who puts God's Word as the compass to guide her relationship with others is likely to love, respect and care for others as exemplified by the story of the Good Samaritan in the Bible.

The complex environmental issues and huge challenges the world finds it in today could be handled more successfully and assuredly by taking heed to the responsibility God gave human beings to be stewards of nature.

Sowing these ideas on the world's most numerous and receptive population, the 4/14ners, is wise investment and its dividend is bound to be handsome. This strategy will be effective in reducing human rights issues that prevail in the world today and at the same time help the world raise up a new generation who guide their lives in accordance with God's plan of relationships.

Christ's missional challenge: The 4/14 Window Movement highlights the fact that children and youth as one of the biggest mission fields in two senses: One, they are about one-third of the world's population; and secondly, that they are most receptive of the Gospel. Studies conducted in some countries show that about 80% of the people who make decisions for Christ make it at or before age 14[14]. The 4/14 Window Movement puts forth to Christians emphatically that the 4/14ners are "effective" agents for the fulfillment of Christ's mission. They should be built, equipped and empowered to be part of the mission force for the spread of the Gospel. The 4/14ners are there for the body of Christ to mold, equip and deploy. The challenge is whether the Bride of Christ is ready and able to "raise its eyes now from where (it is) and look from the place where (it is) now northward, and southward and eastward and westward" (genesis 13:14b) for the mission field and the effective agent in the 4/14ners.

It is correct to say that the best and the most sustainable response to Christ's missional challenge is found what the church does in reaching, equipping and empowering the 4/14ners. Sadly the church has been very negligent on this up to now. The core of the message of the Raising Up a new Generation from the 4/14 Window Movement Transform the World is to challenge the Body of Christ on this very foundational matter.

Celebration challenge- the goal of the celebration challenge is to encourage, endorse, and help develop consistent, regular worship/prayer gatherings in communities with an ultimate goal of 24/7 worship/prayer covering. The 4/14 Window Movement initiative is so wide in scope (the Body of Jesus Christ worldwide), so radical in what it expects the church to do (new missional focus, the way it views children, re-prioritized and re-directed its efforts), and the result to be achieved (transforming the world by reaching, equipping and mobilizing 2.1 billion children and youth), that only the move of God can make all these happen. Hence prayer is everything for the 4/14 Global Movement. One can also see how much the celebration challenge can be alleviated by inspiring and mobilizing the 4/14ners for the purpose. The sheer number of 4/14ners which is estimated to be 2.1 billion leaves no doubt about how mighty and impactful this force can be if it is properly inspired, equipped and mobilized for celebration.

1. By 2020, the leadership of regional and national church alliances or fellowships and global movements embrace the significance of children in the mission and work of global evangelization. Evangelization, discipleship and holistic ministry with, children are integral to the philosophy, strategy documents and action plans of regional and national fellowships and global movements/networks. (Indicators: increase in theological discussions, dissemination of biblical resources, increase in partnering projects; documents showing decadal emphasis on children by regional and national fellowships, denominations and global movements).

2. By 2020, evangelization and holistic discipleship of children has been accelerated in all countries of the world, through new and revised partnerships forged taking into consideration the prevailing realities in the world and the provision of innovative training resources and strategies that are Open-Sourced, contextually relevant, replicable, and available in every major city and major language of the world. These equipping resources and strategies have the capacity to reach children in every nation with the Gospel of Jesus Christ. (Indicators: quality of resources, geographical reach and testimonies of impact on children's lives across the world)

3. By 2020, holistic nurture and ministry of local churches with children who are at risk and in poverty have increased and improved the quality of well-being of children's lives in the Majority World. Global action groups are established among networks/movements for high-level engagement and grassroots actions. There is a growing global force of young Christian leaders coming from underprivileged communities who testify about their individual and community transformation; they emerge as child advocates to promote holistic and active response toward poverty and risks of children. (Indicators: presence of action plans in countries and regions; quantity and quality of collaborative initiatives with needy and at-risk children.

4. By 2020 holistic children's ministry has been included in the curriculum of major theological schools and seminaries in all countries of the world. (Indicators: teaching staffs trained and contextually relevant teaching materials and books produced on holistic children's ministry)

Conclusion

One of the verses that make me sad to the core is Genesis 3:17. It states "because of you the earth has been cursed". The earth and everything in it never recovered and will never do so from what happened to it because of just one sin. One grave mistake made the work of God that was said to be "very good" to spin about 360 degrees in the negative! Some mistakes lead to situations that are difficult to come out of or reveres. Even if reversal is possible the price to do so becomes extremely high. One of the gravest mistakes the Body of Christ made and continues to make is the omission or marginalization of 4/14ners from its ministry focus. Probably most, if not all, the agonizing experiences humanity and nature itself pass through today are easily traceable to this fact.

The Church of Jesus Christ has failed in two areas that have profound implications in relationship of human beings with God, other fellow human beings and nature:

- Failure in equipping and empowering the family to raise children according to God's original plan; and,
- Neglect or marginalization of the 4/14ners in its ministry

The seven challenges that are now the subject of this Global Summit would have not been so prominent in number, complexity, strength and weight had the church and the family heeded to the simple but profound statement we find in Proverbs 22:6 "Raise up the child in which he should go and when is grown up he shall not depart from it".

We know God is always at work and His mercy which is new every morning endures forever. Through the 4/14 Window Global initiative the good Lord has once again made new and special visitation to His body, the Church, to help her open her eyes to the opportunity it has in and through the 4/14neres so that the now and the future challenges facing it and the world can be significantly alleviated and it becomes the salt and light of the of its environment.

TWELVE GEOGRAPHIC REGIONS GEOGRAPHIC RESPONSE TO CHALLENGES

NORTH AMERICA RESPONSE TO CHALLENGES

Facilitator: Christopher Lucey

The paper hopes to articulate a national platform by which each of the seven challenges may participate, be resourced, grow exponentially, and experience transformation personally and professionally – for themselves and others.

The proposed model for North America is also offered as a possible prototype for each of the global regions to explore and determine how aspects of this initiative may serve in their context. It is evident that the formation and development of leaders is at the core of this movement and it will rise or fall based on the clarity and priority The Transform World 2020 (TW2020) Steering Committee and facilitators of the challenges, spheres of cultural influence and local initiatives in each country gives to this practice of equipping leaders. This enables the TW Movement to gain momentum – now region by region and country by country - while building with the long view in mind.

We hope that this innovative initiative will be embraced and seen as a bold demonstration offered to match the challenge of the global task set before us all. It will bring about greater unity, humility, and grace. These are some of the most essential ingredients needed to prepare for our collective collaboration in the years ahead.

TW2020 GLOBAL FELLOWS PROGRAM

The question was raised, "How can a global movement of servant-catalysts be raised up to meet the growing demands of our time?" The answer is simple – build a global fellows program to disciple and equip the global body to meet the demands of the global challenges facing us today.

The standards that this approach had to meet were as follows: 1) is it sustainable, 2) is it scalable, 3) is it strategically meeting the most critical needs for the long-term. We believe the answer to all three basic questions is absolutely – yes.

In consideration of each of the seven challenges and seven spheres it became quite clear that the TW community has amongst us many persons who may be able to serve as advisors or mentors to build up these catalytic leaders for the future. At the same time, these more senior leaders in business and other fields may find that hosting or providing opportunities for them to serve in their organizations at the very least will give them exposure to new environments and enable them to explore new career options and consider possible new options to test their talents.

In short, this program can be launched in every city around the world. It can fit within the current framework of TW. It provides a strong case for others to fund or invest in the current movement. And it accelerates the formation and development over the coming decade to empower and release catalytic servant leaders to transform their spheres and the world around them. So what are some next steps?

THE design of this program may take on several elements but at this time the most important components for consideration may include:

- A TW Global Fellows Program Director (coordinating with Global Facilitators)
- Specific program managers (Administrators) who will support each emphasis – 7 Challenges & 7 Spheres to creatively design local programs
- Dedicated TW "Fellows Assistant Coordinator" to support the implementation of the program and review the initial strategies/ plans
- The recruitment process (the design of a 'selection day' process across cities)

This would create excitement, interest, momentum to fuel local teams. There are other similar programs that would be helpful to the TW Global Board to review if they are not familiar with "post-graduate level fellowship" program model. A few to survey would be,

- Leadership Los Angeles (part of a national affiliate program),
- Coro Foundation – Coro Fellows in Public Policy and Public Affairs,
- White House Fellows (The White House)
- Teach for America
- The Peace Corp).

There are many others but these are well known and established with long track records of success and well defined experiences for the participants and the organizations that sponsor the Fellows themselves.

It would seem that Transform Los Angeles (TLA) (or other cities) could be considered like an 'incubator' that produces 'working models' of how initiatives may be launched. This is a vital work that other members or affiliates within the TW community and its global leadership team may use in the future to evaluate the core focus of specific affiliates and their campaigns. In every way, the future of this ministry and its work will largely be dependent on the capacity of its Steering Committee, the formation of its initial 'Groups' and the long-term spiritual and professional formation of its local leadership teams. At this stage, it is apparent that capacity building (in several areas) is the most fundamental need. No further work or steps can be taken unless we address this issue directly with decisive actions, plans and a clear 'road-map' of the next 24 months which will largely define the trajectory of the movement.

The initiation and development of this Global Fellows Program I believe will address most of the critical needs that TW faces both now and long-term into the future. There are several reasons for the design and formation of this type of program now as it pertains to the strategic nature and intent of TW and its desire to impact global transformation:

- Emerging leaders need to be personally discipled to become "transformational leaders"
- Emerging leaders need to professionally developed and trained to lead with hard and soft skills to become generational "transformational change agents"
- The movement needs to 'incubate' or create localized expressions to reach the right market, audience and caliber of emerging leader to guide others
- The movement needs to establish a recognizable group of leaders committed to the ministry of bringing transformation to selected projects, people, places in micro/ and even with 'nano' environments & expressions (meaning 1:1)

In the midst of all this work, the next generation of globally minded servant-leaders must be called out, separated for service, and discipled. This next generation in conjunction with the advisors and statespersons (multi-generational approach) will take on these enormous challenges together. But first they must determine to pick up the mantle's that have been dropped, misplaced, discarded, or overlooked by former generations. The word that must spring forth from the hearts and lips of all the movement leaders of these generations is: ENOUGH!

The next involves the design of a Global Leadership Fellows Program that may include between 9-12 months of various 'rotations' that each Fellow would be assigned during their program. These rotations would allow people to work/ volunteer or perform internships across multiple organizations that have been 'approved' and 'accepted'. This would allow them to gain practical insights and personal experiences working alongside other leader, managers, visionaries and directors of programs or researchers who are collaborating with TW (and their local on the ground affiliates). The most effective approach seems to include the following three parts to the program:

- 4 – six to eight week long rotations
- Perform 1 advisory level consultation (similar to a project/ practicum)
- Perform 1 research type project during the rotation in the program

The program operates Monday through Friday in conjunction with sponsoring organizations. The Global Fellows will engage in specific work efforts four days per week with a Friday debriefing as a local group and virtually connect with other groups across the nation or around the world. Weekends are optional depending on special events, outreaches, conferences, and invitations.

The foundational core of the program will consist of:

- Servant-Leadership
- Spiritual Formation
- Core Discipleship (life on life)
- Biblical/ Scriptural Training
- Professional Development

These five areas are basic but when fully grasped and 'integrated' become the fabric of the foundation upon which every Statesperson, Advisor or Chief Executive would all agree has become the strength and life-blood upon which they rely upon in the midst of crisis seeking to find clarity.

CONCLUDING THOUGHTS

There are many details to explore in the formation and framework of this program but it seems sufficient to provide a general overview of what this program may offer and how it might be created and directed to support the global vision of TW and its supporting affiliates, partners, and sponsors. This has the potential to be executed in every city in every country worldwide.

There is no other global leadership forum for the body of Christ to fully train up and invest in the next generation – and there may not be a more strategic call to action to mobilize people than TW in the coming decade – now is our opportunity.

Without the ability to recruit, train and release future leaders this movement will not reach its full potential, not come to fruition nor will we experience the full measure of what the Father has established in advance for this work to become – His Bride full alive.

However, if we seek to raise up others around us, each one of the 500 leaders (and others), then the movement grows, it flourishes, it exponentially increases and in the process transforms each person involved. This is possible as the program will uniquely co-create opportunities for each servant leader to invest in the lives of those next generation servants who will impact their spheres leading up to 2020.

LATIN AMERICA RESPONSE TO CHALLENGES

Facilitator: Richard Luna

In observing God's seeds and beginning harvest of transformation worldwide, it has become evident that transformation needs to have the following DNA:

- Transformation is discovered as God's vision
- Transformation is relational and requires a team
- Transformation requires a heart full of passion for change and service
- Transformation requires a process, order and strategy

In The Latin American church, we have embarked on a process order and strategy of transformation that is ready to accept the seven global challenges: of transformation. This is the process:

1. Information: The social challenges of transformation are identified.
2. Revelation: The ministry of transformation is discovered.
    a. The Ecclesiology of transformation: The response of the church to the challenges of the day.
    b. The Missiology of transformation: The challenge for the church to take the principles and values of Jesus to the seven spheres, mountains, or gateways of transformation.

In the left hand column we identify the process and progress of the Latin Church in the mission of transformation. In the right hand column, please reflect and respond to the global challenge from your regional perspective.

LATIN AMERICA RESPONSE	REGIONAL RESPONSE NOTES
Vision: The King Unity of the body of Christ, inspiring a renewal of spiritual and social justice.
Mission: The Kingdom Strengthen the church in fulfilling its mission to establish the Kingdom of God in all spheres of cultural influence.

Seven challenges of transformation

To better understand the transformational issues in Latin America, we are conducting an ongoing survey of ten thousand pastors and leaders, to help us redefine the themes of holistic transformation, as a first step in establishing a process for transformation. As of September 1st, 2011, a total 2,955 surveys have been tabulated identifying the following seven most important social issues in Latin America:

LATIN AMERICA RESPONSE	REGIONAL RESPONSE TO GLOBAL ISSUES
1. Family Disintegration (1,804) 2. Addictions (1,758) 3. Extreme Poverty (1,304) 4. Access to quality education (1,197) 5. Abortion (1,151) 6. Injustice (965) 7. Religiosity/Occult/Idolatry (949)	1. Relational Challenge: Family 2. Orphan Challenge 3. Physical Challenge: Poverty 4. Christ's Missional Challenge 5. Celebration Challenge 6. Human rights challenge 7. Ideological Challenge

Ecclesiology: Seven Initiatives

Knowing the issues is just the first step. The response of the Church to these issues represents its ecclesiology. With the help of pastors and leaders from all of Latin America we have identified the following seven Initiatives of the Church:

Missiology: Seven Spheres

Reflecting that our vision is to influence society with principles and values based on the life of Jesus, we therefore commit to strengthening the Church in its capacity to impact the seven spheres, mountains, or gateways of cultural influence in our society. In order to do so, each sphere will make the following commitments.

The Four Commitments

1. To share the principles and values of Jesus in the sphere.
2. To mentor the next generation in the sphere.
3. To adopt a Latin/Global Challenge.
4. To reproduce this transformational cell at a local, national, regional or global level.

The four commitments makes transformation operational at an organic level, as required in a movement. We will promote ministry prototypes at the following sub-regional levels:

LATIN AMERICA GEO-RESPONSE	REGIONAL GEO-RESPONSE TO GLOBAL ISSUES
• Mexico • Caribbean • Central America • Andean Region • Southern Cone • Latin International • Brazil as its own region.

TRANSFORM WORLD COVENANT

I. Introduction

This "Transformation Covenant" calls Christians everywhere to unite in effective witness to the whole Gospel. The gospel is concerned with every dimension of life. Nothing less than the full-orbed message of Jesus Christ can provide an adequate remedy. We call Christians all over the world to joyfully and compassionately share that "which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked at and our hands have touched—this we proclaim concerning the Word of life" (1 John 1:1b).

Transform World is committed to the transformational mission of God that results in the healing and blessing of the nations so that all may experience the presence, power, and peace of God.

Transform World seeks to serve communities of servant-catalysts in motivating the whole body of Christ to bless the nations. This requires that the body of Christ be mobilized for prayer and collaborative action in order to reach all nations with the good news of the Kingdom of God.

II. Key Assumptions

A. Nature: This is a "God-movement." Streams of transformation from all over the world are converging into one great river of transformation so that the people of God are beginning to move with the power, the presence, and the peace of God. This is bringing healing in the churches that is overflowing in the healing of the nations. Transformation is becoming a unifying vision of the church's mission.

B. Context: This "God-movement" is happening within specific but diverse contexts. Therefore we need to be sensitive to the particular cultural context in which we are working. We seek to be relevant to, but also transforming, our contexts.

C. Identity: We seek to be a transforming community with a transforming mission united to bless all peoples. We are a group of individual, community, city, national, and regional initiatives burdened for the transformation of our own communities, cities, nations and regions—to bless and be blessed in fellowship with others.

D. Destiny: Pursuing transformation means to strive for Christ-likeness as individuals, families, and churches with the goal of impacting community, city, nation and world. The goal of transformation is to grow into the Imago Christi—the image of Christ—so that we might be faithful witnesses of the Gospel.

E. Participation: All who affirm that Jesus Christ is Lord and who seek to fulfill their calling in obedience to the Word of God are invited to participate in this movement.

F. Empowerment: "Transform World" means empowering the local church and every believer to be the instrument of God's transformation. The basic challenge is to train and transform churches and Christians in the character of Jesus Christ and through the Holy Spirit equipped to be God's instrument of transformation in society.

G. Commitment: Our commitment is joyfully to "seek and observe" what God is doing so that we might join in the missio Dei, God's mission, rather than pursuing our own desires and designs.

H. Ethos: We pray that all will be rooted in the "love of God"—sensing the compelling call of God to "love our neighbor!" This ethos of the "love of God" is essential to effective collaboration.

I. Status: Global transformation events are independent, self-selecting and self-sustaining. Each city, national, and regional initiative participating in these events seeks to make a unique contribution from their own calling and place in the body to the global body of believers. The participation of each group contributes to the building up of the global body. The national host group takes responsibility for the event it sponsors.

J. Calling: God is calling his servants to be catalysts that enable personal, ecclesial, societal, and cultural transformation. Compelled by the love of Jesus, in obedience to his command to love our neighbor, the body of Christ empowered by the Holy Spirit can become his agent of transformation, to the glory of God the Father.

III. Biblical/theological Framework

WORLD

The biblical creation narrative asserts that God is Creator and all God created was good. The purpose of the whole creation was to glorify the Creator. Man and woman were created in the image of God and appointed stewards of God's creation (Gen. 1-2). Satan succeeded in tempting Adam and Eve to sin, thereby breaking their relationship with God. Satan presented himself as rival to God. As "ruler of the kingdom of the air" Satan instigated rebellion against God (Eph. 2:2), but man and woman are responsible before God for their choices. All of human life and endeavor is marked by this struggle between the kingdom of this world and the kingdom of God. From Genesis 3 through Revelation 22 the Scriptures give an account of God's ceaseless efforts to redeem humankind and restore his people to their rightful role as stewards of the earth. God's final initiative was to send Jesus Christ to deliver this world from Satan's power and call all peoples to accept God's gift of salvation through Jesus Christ (Acts 26:18-20). The death and resurrection of Jesus Christ marked the victory of God over Satan (Isa. 25:7-8; 1 Cor. 15:54-57). All are called to respond to this message and are accountable for their response (Acts 10:42-43). Jesus' model prayer, "Your kingdom come, your will be done on earth as it is in heaven," is a divine mandate for social transformation as God calls us to love God and our neighbor as the summary of all his commandments. Because of the blood shed at the cross, God's people have the spiritual authority to confront the principalities and powers of darkness and to proclaim the message of God's work and reflecting his righteous presence, thus moving together toward transforming the world.

SCOPE OF THE GOSPEL

As Creator, God is Lord of all, and, therefore, his redemptive concern is comprehensive—seeking to heal and restore "all things" by means of Christ's atoning sacrifice on the cross (Gen. 1:31a; Rom. 8:18-23; Col. 1:19-20). The church's calling is to witness to the kingdom of God in its fullness (Matt. 4:23; Mark 1:15; Luke 4:18-21). To be faithful to the gospel the ministry of the body of Christ must be holistic—encompassing the whole person—spiritual, physical, and social, and all human relationships—with God, with others, and with the environment (Gen. 1:26-28). Anything less than concern for all spheres of life is to misrepresent the all-encompassing Lordship of Jesus Christ over the world.

THE PEOPLES OF THE WORLD

The kingdom of God advances as individuals hear and accept the gospel by faith, are born again, experiencing inward regeneration and transformation expressed in obedience to "all I have commanded" (John 3:3, 16; Matt. 28:19-20; Acts 2:21; Rom. 1:16-17). However, God's concern goes beyond the salvation of the individual. God's redemptive plan encompasses all families, tribes and nations (Gen. 12:1-2; Matt. 28:19-20; Rev. 7:9). As the people of God faithfully witness to the love, truth and power of the Gospel in whatever sphere of life they serve, individuals will be touched and transformed. In this way they become the salt and light that transform society, thus fulfilling the mandate to "disciple all nations" (Matt. 28:19).

WORLDVIEW

As the inspired and authoritative Word of God, the Bible provides a comprehensive worldview, revealing God's truth to all peoples about the nature of ultimate reality, the source of evil, the origin and nature of the physical universe, the meaning and purpose of human life, and the goal of history (John 17:17; 2 Tim. 3:16-17; Gen. 1:1; Col. 1:15-18). Christ's disciples are those whose minds have been renewed by actively putting off false worldviews—distortions of the truth used by Satan to enslave individuals and nations—by being transformed by the Biblical worldview (Matt 22:37; Rom. 1:18-23; 12:2; 2 Cor. 10:3-5; Col. 2:6-8; 1 Peter 1:13). The discipling of the nations requires that the disciples of Jesus Christ allow the biblical worldview to enlighten and enliven every area of their lives and carry it into each sphere of society in order to set men and women free (Is. 11:9b; Matt. 28:18-20; John 8:31-32).

APPLICATION IN LIFE, FAMILY AND VOCATION

As Jesus was God in human flesh, so the church—as the body of Christ—is to manifest Jesus Christ in human flesh as it ministers in the midst of this broken world (John 1:14; Rom. 13:14a; Eph. 5:1; Phil. 2:5-8). As the watching world looks upon the church, Christ's love, sacrificial service, and humble obedience should be clearly reflected (Matt. 22:37-40; 25:32-46; James 2:14-19; 1 John 2:3; 3:16-18; 4:19-21; Rev. 19:7-8). As the Godhead is a community, so we believe that God's nature and character are most clearly displayed in the world when kingdom life is incarnated in community as the body of Christ (Eph. 4:11-13; John 15:12-17).

IMPLEMENTATION THROUGH THE BODY OF CHRIST

The body and bride of Christ—the church—is ordained to be God's primary agent in advancing the kingdom of God (Matt 16:18-19; Eph. 1:22-23; 3:8-11). The present expression of the universal church is the living, worldwide body of redeemed people who have placed their faith in the person and work of Christ alone for the forgiveness of their sins, have been adopted as children of God, and have been given God's Spirit as a pledge of their inheritance and the source of their power to fulfill God's purposes. The local church is the intentional local expression of the universal church that meets regularly for worship, equipping, fellowship and service, making the gospel credible as the incarnate body of Christ in a particular locale (Eph. 2:14-22; 1 Pet. 2:9-10; 1 Cor. 12:4-13; 12:217-28). At the same time the local church engages in discipling the nations by setting apart for cross-cultural ministry those called by the Holy Spirit (Acts 1:8, 11:19-30, 13:1-3).

The Eschatological motive

The transformational changes taking place through the kingdom of God on earth should be kept in the perspective of "already—not yet." Transformation will be completed when God announces "I am making everything new!" from his throne at the return of Christ (Rev. 21:5). In the meantime, we are urged to live transformed lives and look forward to the day of God and speed its coming (2 Pet. 3:11-13). Only then will there be "a new heaven and a new earth, the home of righteousness." As the first coming of Christ has motivated his disciples to witness and serve (2 Cor. 5:14) so the second coming of Christ gives urgency to living transformed lives and doing transformational mission (2 Pet. 3:14; 2 Cor. 5:11).

IV. The Present Challenge and Our Commitment

The Arts

We affirm that creativity and life come from God. Humankind "is created in the image of God" and therefore we humans are creative (Gen. 1: 27). "Skill, ability and knowledge in all kinds of crafts" come from God (Ex. 31:3). We acknowledge that the full scope of the arts—including art, sport and entertainment—have transformational potential in the life of a society. Within the church there are various understandings of this potential strength of the arts to transform. The keys to further understanding of the arts need to be revealed, discovered, developed, and shared through collaboration. The arts give cultural understanding to the eternal truths of the gospel and make invisible truths visible. The arts translate the insights contemplated by the philosophers into forms that impact the imagination and emotions of any society, bringing transformation. Motivated by the vision of bringing biblical truth to bear on all areas of life, we must wrestle with the potential of this powerful tool for shaping the values and beliefs of society. Therefore, we covenant together to pursue the light and character of our life-giving Creator God, seeking to glorify God through artistic expressions and activities that create beauty, build community, and clarify identity.

Assessment

We affirm that Christian transformation is at the core of the gospel of Jesus Christ. Our identities, contexts, cultures, and societies are truly to reflect Christ and his kingdom. We also affirm that the pursuit of Christian transformation will certainly face challenges and obstacles that are rooted in culture and context. Religions, worldviews, and systems of belief often have their own visions for the transformation of society, and these visions can run counter to the pursuit of Christian transformation. In order for our pursuit of Christian transformation to be effective and relevant, it is essential that we identify the prevailing beliefs that underline the value structures and practices of our society. Therefore, we covenant to engage with boldness, humility and integrity in a careful analysis of the various components of our societies, identifying the challenges and hindrances to Christian transformation and to develop contextual assessments that assist the church in her pursuit of transformation.

Catalytic Prayer

We believe that fervent, focused and united prayer releases the sovereign power of God to transform us into Christ's image (2 Cor. 3:18) and to manifest Christ's fullness (Eph. 4:1-6). We believe that extended time in God's presence results in brokenness, confession and authentic reconciliation (Jas. 5:16). We believe this fullness must be released into families, congregations, cities and nations, resulting in increased holiness, harvest among the unreached, and measurable change in society. Efforts toward sustainable societal change must be centered in seeking God together in community and accountability. We declare and agree to call intergenerational kingdom leaders to regularly seek God in community (Rom. 15:5-7), expecting personal transformation (Eph. 4:22-24), congregational renewal, and social reconciliation and transformation. We covenant to take regular, extended times to wait on God (Ps. 130:5-6), seek his favor (Ps. 27:4) and trust his sufficiency (Lam. 3:21-26), anticipating that he will release prophetic revelation of his plans and means to advance his kingdom in cities and nations.

Church

The church unleashed is God's primary agent of transformation. God's mission, reflected in the gospel as a whole and underscored in the Great Commission, is for his people to fully participate in global, holistic transformation, including the arts, the marketplace, education, health, and other developmental issues that are critical for sustainable change and vitality. This transformational process involves a full embrace of the gospel by each local church with its unique makeup and methodology. We boldly and uncompromisingly covenant to be the church rooted in the Word and empowered by the Holy Spirit, becoming the servants—the platform—to the new priests and prophets—that is, professionals, managers, entrepreneurs, artists—the catalysts and bridge-builders for global transformation.

Coaching

The body of Christ has the value base and heart motivation to seize the opportunity of providing coaching for transformation as a viable, timely, appropriate and biblical methodology to accelerate expansion of God's kingdom and influence with and through both believers and unbelievers to bring personal and societal transformation. We covenant to advance coaching for transformation, which is the intentional investment in a person that helps them discover Godly values and their God-given purpose, design, and destiny, thereby transforming their perspectives and behaviours and making them effective in releasing God's influence in their relationships and responsibilities.

Crisis Response

God in His sovereign purposes orchestrates and works out everything for His glory, including disasters that devastate communities. But through devastation, pain and suffering, His healing and kingdom transformation can come into many communities that have been closed to Christian witness for generations. At its heart, Crisis Response is the ministry of intercession and reconciliation. Like the Son who left His world to enter into our world to bring healing, comfort, liberty and restoration, we the church, are to go out of our way for our neighbors in their time of need. We therefore covenant to be discerning of God's "kairos" interventions and bring His love, healing and reconciliation to people in crisis. We covenant also to network for the mobilization of resources to where the needs are in time of crises so that kingdom transformation may come into these communities.

Discipleship

We affirm our need to obey the command of Jesus Christ to disciple the nations for the transformation of individuals and communities. We affirm that biblical discipleship is the foundation of ministry that brings transformation to all facets of life. We covenant to mature as disciples and to disciple all others into the fullness of Christ.

Family

The union between one man and one woman in marriage for life is the first and only institution God established before the fall. Marriage is the most fundamental unit of a family, the church, and a nation (Gen. 1:27-28, 2:21-24). Family is the leading influence in shaping a person, since it will determine an individual's spiritual, emotional, social, and physical life. A healthy family background fosters greater productivity and personal well-being. The transformation of the family will transform communities, cities and nations. Therefore, we covenant to promote, teach, and demonstrate the wholesome family under God as described in Ephesians 5:22-6:4.

Governance

In this diverse world there are many different forms of government. In many governments there are committed Christians who are salt and light in the positions in which they serve. The Christian's use of power, according to Jesus should always produce a benefit for those who are being served, especially the poor, the fatherless and the widow. We covenant to benefit the people and the State through our allegiance to the King of kings, who establishes and brings down human governments, exercising state and political power in such a way as to enable transformation and redemption among those whom we serve.

Health

We affirm that the abundant life that Jesus brings incorporates all the fullness of physical, spiritual, relational, and mental well-being of God's shalom. We commit to transformational health ministry in the name of Jesus that heals all forms of brokenness, restoring individuals, families, communities and nations to partnering with God in the celebration and stewardship of life.

Higher Education: Christian

Christian higher education plays a strategic role in the transformation of individuals, the media, institutions, societies and nations. It effects the inculcation of values and contributes to the organization of key social processes in society through the application of Christian worldview. As a continuous, lifelong and creative process, education has an almost unbounded transformational capacity. The fundamental purpose of education is the transforming and equipping of individuals to become Christian servant leaders within their church, communities and around the world (Col. 1:28). The ultimate mission of Christian higher education is to equip people to embrace God's mission (apostolically), to critically engage culture (prophetically), to bear witness (evangelistically) and to experience transforming knowledge—formatively and didactically (Eph. 4:11-13). This will enable people to achieve a changed life in Jesus Christ and participate in the holistic redemptive and transformative task in church, community and nation. Christian higher education includes two tracks: (1) training for life in society and marketplace; and (2) training for ministry within the church: (a) general Christian education, (b) vocational theological education, and (c) missiological education. W*e covenant to address this task as participants in the educational process.*

Higher Education in the Secular Sector

A Christ-centered, transformational vision for secular colleges and universities is that they will be impacted to become places of blessing. All members of the academic community will have the opportunity to hear the gospel. In that environment, both faculty and students will be won to Christ, nurtured in their faith, and trained in reproductive ministry. Believing students will be equipped to engage their future professions from a kingdom standpoint, while believing faculty and administrators will be encouraged and equipped to eliminate the gap between their professional lives and their personal discipleship. We want to encourage believers to develop a kingdom voice on campus so that the atmosphere of the university will experience transformation, and believing students will leave ready to influence and bless society. Therefore, we covenant, by God's enabling and grace, to promote transformation on secular university campuses through ministries of personal redemption, professional excellence, and Spirit-led intellectual engagement within the academy.

Leadership

A transformational leader is a disciple of Jesus Christ who influences people to participate in God-given purposes so that kingdom values are manifested in all sectors of society. The transformational leader has integrity, a servant spirit and aligns spiritual values and disciplines with leadership principles. A transformation leader inspires people with a compelling God-given vision that involves them in action that they wouldn't have done alone. Therefore, we covenant, by the power of God's indwelling Holy Spirit, to seek to follow our Lord Jesus Christ as his obedient servants and to seek to serve his people by cultivating leaders who will seek to transform themselves, their congregations and their communities for his glory.

Least-reached

Christ has purchased people from every tribe, language, people, and nation (Rev. 5:9). We look forward with anticipation and joy to a time when the body of Christ from every group stands before the throne worshiping God (Rev. 7:9). We accept God's mandate to fulfill the Great Commission for each people group to finish the unfinished task. In seeking to reach the least-reached, we must be living sacrifices (Rom. 12:1-2, John 12:24) as we allow God to transform our lives and churches at any cost. We covenant together with the Body of Christ to seek, pray for, and serve the least-reached through our communities as we minister incarnationally in wider holistic witness and deeper discipleship.

Marketplace

This is a season for the Marketplace. Business is ministry. Businesspeople are ministers who serve people through what they do, how they do it, and why they do it. Business is a calling and businesspeople are stewards not just of the assets but also the calling of the corporation. The chief end of business is to glorify God and advance his kingdom and we do this through the identification and meeting of needs through goods and services, generally at a profit. The Marketplace can empower people to create new businesses and expand the kingdom through the creation, replication and deployment of businesses to and for the healing of the nations. Business involves reclaiming the essence of work which was lost by Adam and Eve, but redeemed by Jesus. Work is sacred, a pre-fall reality, and doing work God's way equips us for responsibilities in eternity. Business is a practical way in which creation is reclaimed. Businesspeople carry the "ministry of reconciliation" so that "all things" – not just people – are realigned with God's principles. The Biblical imperatives for both character and competence must be embraced and lived out in the marketplace. Businesspeople are called to live prophetically in the marketplace. Our commitment is to carry this renewed thinking to any group in our sphere of influence not aligned with these truths – marketplace people and church leaders alike.

Micro-Enterprise

God created the earth and all that is in it and mandated humankind to be fruitful and multiply, tilling and tending the land (Gen. 1-3). In doing so, God gave human beings the capacity to generate wealth in order to meet their needs and live in communion with him and with one another. God intended that all people would have opportunity to be productive, fulfilled, and live without want. Contrary to God's intention, today half of the world's six billion people live in abject poverty—subsisting on less than $2 per day, unemployment, disease, and illiteracy. They lack access to fair credit and related opportunities. Christian micro-economic development (CMED) is committed to providing financial and other services to the poor that will enable them to create employment and generate income in sustainable ways. CMED is rooted in Biblical principles and motivated by the compassion of the Lord Jesus to equip people to meet their basic needs (Matt. 25:33-40; Luke 4:18). CMED goes beyond conventional micro-economic development (MED) by following a holistic approach that promotes development that brings about economic, social, political, and spiritual transformation. We covenant to equip and strengthen the Church to engage in socio-economic development as a means of extending the Kingdom of God.

Mission

Mission is a movement of transformation that is flowing all over the world, and we need to be part of it. We are seeing new evidences of Holy Spirit vitality and innovation. Mission initiatives from many churches, particularly Latin America, Africa and Asia, are engaging least-reached groups within their own nations, as well as going to other parts of the world. Insider movements are emerging in situations that have been resistant to the Gospel. Other urgent challenges include lack of church unity, affluence and consumerism, religious plurality, fundamentalism, and persecution, children and women at risk, and HIV/AIDS. Churches need to discover the meaning and practice of mission in these new contexts. We covenant to engage our churches to urgently obey the Great Commission.

Nation Building

Because…"All the ends of the earth will remember and turn to the Lord, and all the families of the nations will bow down before him, for dominion belongs to the Lord and he rules over the nations (Ps. 22:27-28): (1) We believe that God has a redemption plan and prophetic future for every nation; (2) We believe God desires for every nation to be built up in him, fulfilling its God-given potential, and reflecting his nature of justice, mercy and compassion; (3) We believe that nation-building is the privileged role of the church, the primary responsibility of every born-again believer, as God's salt and light community among the nations. Therefore we commit to: (1) put God first and honor his ambition and agenda in nation-building; (2) depend on the power of the Holy Spirit to holistically build up nations in the way of God; (3) model the scriptural injunction in Matthew 5:13-16, being salt and light in a depraved and darkened world in our respective sphere of influence; (4) network and synergize efforts with likeminded servant leaders called by God to live out the vision of nation-building in every domain of society; (5) be a life-long learning community and document nation-building stories and scenarios to inspire generations to come toward this same noble goal of nation-building.

The Poor

We recognize that the Lord has entrusted the poor to his church and understands that every believer has been commanded to love and remember them, and provide for their needs both spiritually and physically. Therefore, we covenant to transform mindsets, integrate assets and synchronize initiatives to stabilize urban poor and develop rural communities.

Scriptural Impact

We affirm that the Bible is God's authoritative revelation given for our salvation that includes individual transformation into the image of God and our collective transformation into the kingdom of God. Therefore we care deeply for those who have little or no access to God's Word. We affirm the need to equip and mobilize the whole church to revere God's Word and to love, study, teach and submit to it and to ensure that it is readily accessible to every people group on earth. We covenant to be people of the Word ourselves and do whatever it takes to enable others to encounter the transforming power of God's Word.

Stewardship

We declare that God is creator and Lord and so everything in heaven and on earth belongs to him; that wealth and honor come from him (I Chron. 29:11-12, Deut. 8:18) and that we are mere stewards. We acknowledge that we are sojourners on earth and believe we have a glorious inheritance in eternity (1 Pet. 1:3-5). As disciples of Christ we are called to live faithfully by God's stewardship principles in every area of our lives (Luke 16:12). Recognizing that God has entrusted to us time, talent and treasures, we will seek to equip every believer to learn, apply and teach God's stewardship principles so that they may know Christ more intimately, be free to serve him, bring his presence and glory to our world, and to fulfill the Great Commission.

Witness in Society

Christian witness will have power as it is rooted in practical ministry in Church and society. All believers are called to participate in this task, not just "religious professionals." This will require believers in every single domain and infrastructure of society to be salt and light. The new frontier is across vocations, not just geographic boundaries and organizations. This is where believers and non-believers interact on a daily basis. There is opportunity, for example, for believers to work with non-governmental organizations in promoting liberty in education, and developing local institutions to meet the basic needs of the community. This calls for a new kind of disciple characterized by personal radical inner transformation. We covenant to be salt and light in every aspect of life, through every avenue of vocation and service available to us individually and corporately, in our communities and on the frontiers where the gospel is yet to be proclaimed.

Women in Transformation Leadership

The biblical account of the creation of woman makes it clear that man and woman were created in the image of God. According to Genesis 2:18 (Amplified Bible) "woman was created to be 'a help meet' (suitable, adapted, complementary)" for the man. We seek to provide an overarching call towards intimacy with God and spiritual growth, realizing and utilizing spiritual gifts, service, nurturing relationships, and developing into women of excellence (Prov. 31) in the Body of Christ. This calls for a paradigm shift to transform the hearts and minds of both men and women if we are to see women fulfill their God-given call. According to 1 Corinthians 12, the nine spiritual gifts are given for all believers and are not gender specific. This is a day for the WHOLE BODY of Christ to arise together—every laborer is needed. Therefore, we covenant by God's enabling power, grace and love to promote transformation of the hearts and minds of both the man and the woman to understand this powerful truth and to equip and empower women to their full potential in God.

Worship

Worship is the ultimate expression of our devotion to God. Because worship is rooted in relationship, we are to be rightly related to God as those who worship him in Spirit and truth (John 4). We can observe that the Lord is raising up a generation of worshipers who have the great opportunity to network with each other for encouragement and equipping with a view toward modeling for the emerging generations what it means to be in a vibrant worshiping relationship with God. The transformational impact of this worship relationship will bring worshipers into their God-oriented purpose and destiny (Isa. 6), enabling them to participate in the transformation process of their home, church, community, nation and world. By the grace of God we covenant to be true worshipers to model for the next generation, and to network globally to learn from one another, to serve and encourage each other, and to work together for global events that will usher in the glory of God among the nations.

Youth

We crave communities of youth living in an uncompromising relationship with Jesus Christ and igniting a Spiritual Revolution that pierces the darkness. Mentored in relationships, grounded in God's Word, and empowered by the Holy Spirit we do ordinary things in extraordinary ways to see the Great Commission fulfilled, even in the face of persecution or death. We believe that: (1) every age-group should be trusted and empowered to evangelize, disciple, lead and fulfill the Great Commission; (2) authentic faith is lived out in genuine community, mobile in structure, networked together, socially relevant and connected intergenerationally; and (3) Christ-like character is expressed in bringing real transformation and raising up leaders, not by size or notoriety.

V. Conclusion

We believe God is doing something new through the Body of Christ as we go forward into the 21st century. The Holy Spirit is leading us into fresh forms and fields of ministry. The rising generation is seeing the vision of God's mission to the world and its place in that mission with new eyes. The People of God are permanently in the missionary situation wherever they are. The call to mission has never been more compelling and urgent. Our challenge is to claim all the resources of the Gospel for the task at hand and then to go forth in faith, hope and joy, witnessing to God's love and compassion for all people.

Note: Many people have contributed to this Transformational Covenant: the planning and coordinating committees, focus groups, and advisors. The drafting was begun in 2004 and completed during Transform World, May 1-5, 2005, Jakarta, Indonesia. The drafting process was facilitated by the Covenant Committee: Wilbert R. Shenk, chair; Remi Lawanson, vice-chair; and chairs of the twenty-six focus groups.

A DISCIPLED CHURCH FOR A TRANSFORMED WORLD[15]

Five Cries of the Church Today

Regardless of the size and makeup of the variety of churches across diverse cultures, there are five common cries of the local church that frequently surface. Obviously, not every church has expressed all these five cries. But the fact remains, they are very common -

1. "Too Many Programs..."

   Many activities and silos; but not all are aligned to the church's mission!

2. "Too Few Volunteers..."

   Though volunteers are hard to find, leaders are harder to find!

3. "The Leadership Direction Is Unclear..."

   The "goal posts" keep shifting! The direction is fuzzy.

4. "The Leadership Is Divided..."

   Lack of leadership resonance; or in some cases, bitter leadership conflicts!

5. "The People Are Not Discipled..."

   Members feel that they are not spiritually fed or trained.

Of course, we thank God for strong, vibrant churches. However, for every strong church, there exist too many weak and struggling churches. Something must be done about this!

The Critical Need Today

The Church does not exist just to carry out diverse church programmes. The disciplemaking Church intentionally aims at bringing people to a right relationship with God, maturing them in Him, so that they can multiply spiritually — thereby making a transformational difference for Christ in the world they live in!

The critical need of the Church today is for spiritual depth and authenticity. It has been rightly lamented that that although we have the largest Church in history, we also have the shallowest! Doing supersedes being. Goals supersede growth. Accomplishment supersedes authenticity. Attention to the diversity of programmes supersedes attention to the discipleship of people.

[15] Edmund Chan

Many local churches include the terms "making disciples" or "disciplemaking" in their mission statements. However, few go beyond mere rhetoric to actually engage in intentional disciplemaking with proven strategies. Fewer still have an established track-record of reproducing disciples of spiritual depth and maturity.

The Challenge Before Us

The crisis of disciplemaking today is the crisis of product. We must get back to basics. The defining question of discipleship is: "What kind of disciples does God call us to reproduce?"

The modern church is struggling to reproduce disciples of spiritual depth, yet too little is being done about it. The complacency is staggering.

The biblical key to healthy churches is biblical discipleship. Real spiritual depth can only come about when we return to the biblical blueprint of authentic discipleship and intentional disciplemaking in the local church!

Four Biblical Convictions

The impetus for such a vital discipleship is anchored upon four biblical convictions

1. Jesus Christ is coming again soon (Heb 10:37)
2. Because Jesus Christ is coming again soon, the urgent task is world evangelization

   (2 Pet 3:9)
3. The key to world evangelization is intentional disciple-making (Matt 28:18-20)
4. At the heart of intentional disciple-making is authentic, biblical discipleship to Jesus Christ, who is coming again soon (Luke 9:23)

The core mission of the Church is disciplemaking. Disciplemaking was at the heart of Jesus' earthly ministry, the strategic focus of His Great Commission.

How To: Four Irreducible Minimums

Disciplemaking is all about a certain kind of person, radically committed to a certain kind of purpose, who through a certain kind of process, reproduces a certain kind of product. At the heart of our calling to make a certain kind of disciples are four irreducible minimums –

1. A FAITH Worth Having – Understanding the heart of the Gospel
2. A MASTER Worth Following – Understanding the Lordship of Jesus
3. A CAUSE Worth Pursuing – Understanding the Kingdom and Missions
4. A LIFE Worth Living – Understanding the redemptive nature of discipleship

It is time we re-examine our assumptions and disciple our congregation to grow spiritually through a radical discipleship from the inside out!

The disciplemaking Church does not merely go through the motions. We must aim to empower intentional disciplemaking churches to reproduce disciples of 'a certain kind' and multiply them to win the world for Christ. That's the key to transformation. We will need a discipled Church to have a transformed world!

MISSIONAL FRAMEWORK:

MISSION OF TRANSFORMATION

Transformation is a concept rooted in the New Covenant (see John 4:14, Romans 12:2, 2 Corinthians 3:18, 5:17, and I John 3:9). The term itself derives from the Greek word "metamorphoo" which means to change from one degree of glory to another, with ever increasing glory. It is the spiritual equivalent of a caterpillar being metamorphosed into a butterfly. Unlike reformation, it does not merely tinker with society; it changes it from the inside out. It operates at the heart level.[16]

Transformation is the progressive and ongoing measurable supernatural impact of the presence and power of God working in, through and apart from the Church on human society and structures. In the church, this is characterized by increased holiness of life, reconciliation in relationships, and appetite for prayer and worship. Through the Church this is characterized by accelerated conversion growth, mobilization of gifts and callings, and an increased relevance to and participation in greater society.

In the culture, this may be characterized by pervasive awareness of the reality of God, a radical correction of social ills, a commensurate decrease in crime rates, supernatural blessing on local commerce, healing of the brokenhearted (the alienated and disenfranchised), regenerative acts of restoring the productivity of the land, and an exporting of kingdom righteousness.

To this end, a catalytic core of saints typically embrace a lifestyle of persistent repentance, humility, and sacrificial servanthood that attracts the favor and presence of God, and breaks the predominating influences of the ruling power structures of human flesh and negative spiritual forces.[17]

Transformation involves seeking positive change in the whole of human life materially, socially and spiritually, by recovering our true identity as human beings created in the image of God and discovering our true vocation as productive stewards, faithfully caring for our world and people.[18]

Transformation is the change from a condition of human existence contrary to God's purposes to one in which people are able to enjoy fullness of life in harmony with God. According to the biblical view of human life, then, transformation is the change from a condition of human existence contrary to God's purposes to one in which people are able to enjoy fullness of life in harmony with God (John 10:10, Colossians 3:8-15, Ephesians 4:13). This transformation can only take place through the obedience of individuals and communities to the Gospel of Jesus Christ, whose power changes the lives of men and women by releasing them from the guilt, power and consequences of sin, enabling them to respond with love toward God and towards others (Romans 5:5), and making them" new creatures in Christ" (2 Corinthians 5:17).[19]

City reaching is the ongoing process of mobilizing the whole body of Christ in a geographic area to strategically focus its resources on reaching the whole city with the whole Gospel, resulting in the transformation of the city and its societies.

Dedication to mobilizing the whole Church requires the initiative be inclusive of every believer in its approach. Commitment to the whole city requires that the initiative be comprehensive in its scope to include all peoples, problems, and conditions that affect community life. The whole Gospel requires methods that are holistic in nature requiring a balanced integration of proclamation and incarnation. A city reaching initiative by definition must be inclusive in approach, comprehensive in scope, and holistic in nature.

Transformation is a reference to two points of time in a city's history, where the city is now and where it once was. For a growing number of cities, the language that best describes the degree of societal change occurring between those two historic points is transformation. Deep and profound change is possible in human beings and is equally possible for the social organisms that we call cities and communities.[20]

[19] Wheaton '83, sponsored by the World Evangelical Fellowship, provided a platform for further clarification of the response to human need among evangelicals. In the book containing the presentations made at the "Consultation on the Church in Response to Human Need," edited by the co-presenters of the topic "Evangelism and Social Responsibility" a year earlier, Vinay Samuel and Chris Sugden, the final document titled "Transformation" reflects, by its very name, the call for societal transformation (Samuel and Sugden 1987:254-265).

[20] Jack Dennison

An effort to define a comprehensive approach to transformation must be "rooted in the theology of the mission of the Kingdom of God and seeks to express the Lordship of Jesus over every aspect of life, economic, religious, personal, and political. It does not give priority to any area of life as an area for mission . . . but this change will be effected whenever people address issues of life directly, rooted in a gospel perspective."[21]

As the head of the church, Christ initiates and His body responds—as one body. Transformation associates are now gathering to contemplate, then seek to cooperate with the beauty of God's movements. The basic idea behind "transformation coordination" is that, not only can we do more together than we can separately, but we move to a new ministry realm that operates on entirely new laws of input and output. Like the gushing forth of the waters, the love of God through the people of God unleashes multiple mission initiatives in which divine resources are channeled through willing servants to meet human needs to the glory of God.

A comprehensive movement to bless the nations includes many emphases. Missional initiative among the last and the least prioritizes the spiritually needy while integrating the physically needy without leaving any country out of "focus." Transformational leadership engages a new generation in participatory leadership with current leadership.

A transformed world is a place where the power, the presence, and the peace of God are experienced by all. The power of God is unleashed. The peace of God rules. Shalom-Salaam embrace. The presence of God fills the earth.

PRINCIPLES OF MISSION AS TRANSFORMATION

We are being called to seek God in all His holiness, to humble ourselves as did Isaiah of old, to respond to God with a "Yes, send me" when he asks "Whom shall I send?" to seek the unity of God's servants and to cultivate creative transformational community initiatives to bless the peoples and the nations.

Principles emerge in response to the question "What will it take to achieve the vision for transformation?" Some of the proven principles include the following:

Spiritual Vitality – Laying the foundation for ministry through corporate spiritual growth

Experiencing the holiness of God with other leaders leads to repentance, humility, and deeper life commitment to Christ and His mission in the world.

Relational Priority – Fueling momentum for ministry through loving relationships

Reconciling, forming, and developing relationships of mutual love, respect, and trust enables leaders to work together for the common good of their community.

Compelling Vision – Aligning transformational efforts by maintaining vision for the completed task

Ongoing clear, compelling, and comprehensive vision casting, involving everyone in the project, brings about shared vision, values, and strategy, a common language and goals, urgency to act, and a bonded team.

Empowering Leadership – Identifying leaders and initiating a process for community transformation

Empowerment thrives from a growing base of committed leaders and no barriers to keep them from doing a good job. Effective leaders shepherd people and help put together structures and strategies to carry out God's vision. Strategy results from the prayerful planning of leaders who recognize the activity of God in the community and make the large-scale adjustments needed to join Him in that activity.

Thorough Research – Increasing understanding of the current realities of one's community

If the Church wants to be relevant and effective in the community, it needs good information that describes the community's people and need, the condition of the church, and the spiritual forces which influence current reality. The Church must see the city as it truly is, not just what it seems to be. These data will show leaders God's top priorities and highest leverage (greatest results per effort) ministries that will bring about the most impact and lasting results.

Loving Service – Enacting high leverage opportunities to minister to the community

Building bridges through acts of service and kindness establishes relationships of trust and credibility with the community. People open their lives to those who genuinely care about personal and community needs and more often will open their hearts to the One who empowers loving service.

Intentional Learning – Making a fresh commitment to individual and corporate learning around needed skills and effective ministry models.

JESUS AS PROPHET, PRIEST, KING AND THE TRANSFORMATION OF CULTURE[22]

Adam was created with the ability to hear and speak on behalf of God, to offer up life in all its dimensions to the Creator, and to have dominion over the lower creation (Gen 1:26-28). As such he was made to be prophet, priest and king in the world. All of these glorious ministries, or "offices", were diminished and distorted through the Fall into sin (Rom 3:23).

God chose Israel to be "a kingdom of priests and a holy nation" so that the goodness of his word, the readiness of his compassion and the justice of his rule might be seen by all peoples (Gen 12:1-3; Ex 19:5-6). As a theocracy, Israel was governed by prophets, priests and kings. These can be described as the Three Offices of Mediation.

Since even the most faithful of these ministries were however beset by sin e.g. Moses, David, it was necessary that God send a perfect Mediator, Jesus Christ. Christ alone fully unites the three offices of Prophet, Priest and King in his person. As Prophet he represents God with man, as Priest he represents man in the presence of God, and as King he exercises dominion and restores the original dominion of man (Luke 13:33; Acts 3:22; Heb 3:1; 4:14; Matt 28:18; John 1:49; Rev 19:15-16). From his ascended position Christ intercedes for the Church and bestows on her gifts of the Spirit that she may continue his ministry as Prophet, Priest and King in the world (Acts 2:33; Rom 8:34; Eph 4:10-16).

As such the Body of Christ is "a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for his own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of him who called you out of darkness into his marvellous light." (1 Peter 2:9 cf. Rev 1:6; 5:10) This ministry of illumination is to be exercised in "all things"; i.e. in every sphere or domain in which the people of God live and work in their daily lives (Eph 1:22-23; 4:10; Col 2:9-10). Whilst in the New Testament only those specifically chosen are described as prophets, and individual believers are not described as "priests" and "kings", the three fold office of Christ continues through each person who confesses Jesus as Lord.

As followers of Jesus we all hold his prophetic testimony (Rev 1:6; 19:6), are called to make intercession for those in authority as a priesthood of all believers (1 Tim 2:1-4), and "reign in life" by his power (Rom 5:17). Such manifestation of the offices of Christ are expressions of his sovereign authority to disciple the nations (Matt 28:18-19). Although certain aspects of the offices may be more visible in some spheres of culture than others, the vocation of the whole people of God is to interpenetrate all spheres of society and culture with the saving redemptive power of "the aroma of Christ to God" (2 Cor. 2:14-16).

TRANSFORM WORLD CONNECTIONS (TWC) IS A STARFISH TYPE STRUCTURE

TWC serves the Transform World Movement and TW 2020 Vision as a starfish.

Background: Global Context regarding Structures of Mission

- Movements are going to raise and fall with increased rapidity in the world in which we live. That is because the context around us is changing so rapidly.
- Organizational structures can't hope to keep up with these rapid changes.
- As a documentation of past effectiveness, most organizational structure looks back not forward.
- It seems that the core of a movement in today's world is a few gifted people, a core of people, who trust and respect one another and apply their gifts and creativity to God's common existential calling on their lives.
- There will always be movement of people into and out of the motivational and empowering circle because of very permeable, shifting, and porous boundaries.
- Diversity of gifts, experience, and background within the core provide a necessary flexibility to keep renewal going. This diversity must be protected and nurtured as the natural tendency of the core is to homogenize.
- Structures is usually built to protect a "brand", exercise quality control, enhance communication, secure property, or perpetuates and replicate processes. All these functions come from a desire for positive control of a process or product.
- One needs a "brand" if the organization is raising capital from a broader public.
- Structure and leadership consume a greater amount of resources.
- We have decided that we are not going to try to protect our "brand" of transformation.
- TWC does not seem to have any of those functional needs except to possibly enhance communication.
- Our natural default position when something good happens is "program or package it" so that it can be scaled up.
- Positional leadership may not be essential but there must be appropriate and acknowledged leadership.

- Leadership is functional and not necessarily positional and may shift from person to person in the core as the challenges to the movement change.
- Many others will plug in and plug out as their personal calling and vision find resonance and enhances the vision and values of the core and they are useful and fulfilled. In the article on the Starfish you all are essentially the starfish.
- Honest communication, meaningful interaction, and successful execution of the vision constitute the currency or fuel that drives the network.
- To the extent that the "starfish" is a structural response to the movements needs it is a helpful concept. It is however a "means" not some static ideal structure we are aiming to build. It is much more dynamic than that.

Basic thoughts on the Spider/Starfish concept and TWC

- TW pursues "Starfish" type of ministry.
- The "Starfish" ministry empowers all of God's people (paid and volunteer) to participate in God's work.
- Prayer is foundational. To facilitate effective "Starfish" and servant paradigms, we need God's continued and major help.
- The "Starfish" ministry encourages greater dependence on God.
- This does not negate the need for structure and leadership, but it should not be overpowering.
- Wherever leadership is needed, it does so in servant hood and humility, with dependence on and glory to God.
- Transform Word events serve as a platform where God's vision of global transformation is being cast, not where the details are controlled.
- Decentralization is the best model only when parts are connected by connecting ministries.
- To the extent that the "Starfish" is a structural response to the Movement's needs it is a helpful concept. It is however a "means" not some static ideal structure we are aiming to build. It is much more dynamic than that.
- Positional leadership may not be essential but there must be appropriate and acknowledged leadership. It is functional and not necessarily positional and may shift from person to person in the core as the challenges to the movement change.
- To the extent that the "starfish" is a structural response to the movements needs it is a helpful concept. It is however a "means" not some static ideal structure we are aiming to build. It is much more dynamic that that.
- We have never said that there is any desire to perpetuate the movement.

TWC Embraces Starfish Organizational Model

- TWC is essentially like a "Starfish." Honest communication, meaningful interaction and successful execution of the vision constitute the currency or fuel that drives the network.
- TWC core maintains vision and values.
- There needs to be a core that possesses a diversity of gifts, experience and backgrounds to provide necessary flexibility to keep renewal going. This diversity must be protected and nurtured as the natural tendency of the core is to homogenize.
- TWC events play a role as platforms of sharing knowledge, experience, inspirations, ideas and relationships, while the focus groups as communities of servant catalysts, and set up practical agendas for local and global transformation.
- In TWC we have said that we want to trust the Holy Spirit for many of those functions.
- Many others will plug in and plug out as their personal calling and vision find resonance and enhances the vision and values of the core and they are useful and fulfilled.
- We have stated we will follow the Holy Spirit's quickening of individuals who "get it."
- Honest communication, meaningful interaction, and successful execution of the vision constitute the currency or fuel that drives the network.
- TWC events play a role as platforms of sharing knowledge, experience, inspirations, ideas and relationships, while the focus groups as communities of servant catalysts, and set up practical agendas for local and global transformation.

THE BEGINNINGS OF THE TRANSFORM WORLD MOVEMENT

The term transform world was used by Iman Santoso and Djohan Handoyo for the first global transform world event called Transform World Indonesia 2005. On May 5, 2005 the launch of the Transform World Connections took place at the main stadium in Jakarta at a prayer rally with simultaneous link to 54 satellite locations hosting prayer for transformation events throughout Indonesia. The term Transform World Connections (TWC) was used to describe the vision of connecting people and nations who shared the vision of mission as transformation as well as describe the TWC office which has functioned ever since then in Singapore with Djohan Handoyo serving as chairman, Harun Lie as General Secretary and other board members coming from Singapore and Indonesia.

The Jakarta Post

Friday, May 6, 2005 TWENTY-FOUR PAGES Vol. 23 No. 11

RISING SPIRIT: Christians raise their hands high as they sing songs during a gathering called the National Prayer at Bung Karno Stadium in Senayan, Central Jakarta. Tens of thousands of Christians packed the stadium on Thursday to attend the event held to commemorate the Ascension Day of Jesus Christ.

A seven year initiative in response to seven global challenges called Transform World 2020 launches at the Transform World Global Summit (TW GS 2012), November 6 to 10, 2012 in Bali, Indonesia. A Transform World 2020 Steering Committee comprised of regional facilitators, almost all under fifty years old, is chaired by Daniel Kim from South Korea.

Transform World was born out of a prayer movement and a three year journey in the listening mode in pursuit of the question: "What is God saying to His servants around the world?" Iman Santoso was leading a movement of prayer in Indonesia which began toward the end of the decade of the 1990's.

The World Inquiry was a "venture in the listening mode" to hear God's voice through His servants—especially those who are now emerging onto their local, regional and national scenes in the Majority World. The inquiry became a movement, engaging many local national servants of God around the globe and had the spiritual covering and strategic sponsorship of the Fuller School of World Mission and was done in collaboration with the Lausanne Committee on World Evangelization (LCWE). Then LCWE Chairman Paul Cedar wrote in the foreword of the final of the six books that were produced titled: Transformation: A Unifying Vision of the Church's Mission, "The results of the World Inquiry complements and supplements the issues being considered by the 2004 Forum," and "By God's grace, I pray that we would be not mere "readers" of these pages but "doers" of all that God is calling us to do to advance His mission around the world."

- The World Inquiry findings were presented at the LCWE 2004 Issues Forum in Fall 2004 in Thailand consisting of three main points:
- The winds of change are swirling with great intensity around the Christian world at the beginning of the 21st century.
- All the newness and mission initiative out of mission fields of the past signals a new phase in mission.
- Transformation has become a unifying vision for the Church's mission.

God is calling his servants to act as catalysts of personal, church and cultural transformation so that, compelled by the love of Jesus, in obedience to His command to love our neighbor through the empowering of the Holy Spirit, the body of Christ become His agent of transformation to the glory of God the Father; a transforming church on a transforming mission.

Reporting on the LCWE 2004 Issues Forum Lausanne International Director at that time, David Claydon wrote:

> Transformation was a theme which emerged from the working groups. We acknowledge our own need to be continually transformed, to continue to open ourselves to the leading of the Holy Spirit, to the challenges of God's word and to grow in Christ together with fellow Christians in ways that result in social and economic transformation. We acknowledge that the scope of the gospel and building the Kingdom of God involves, body, mind, soul and spirit. Therefore we call for increasing integration of service to society and proclamation of the gospel.

The issues considered by the 2004 Forum resulted in Lausanne Occasional Papers (LOP's) that have been found to be instructive in transformation initiatives taking place around the world. For example, Transforming Sydney (TS) facilitator and convener, Lilian Schmid, reported that TS uses the LOPs as some of our prime resources to develop guidelines and processes as for example:

- ✧ LOP 3: The Lausanne Covenant: An Exposition and Commentary by John Stott
- ✧ LOP 8: Christian Witness to Secularized People
- ✧ LOP 24: Cooperating in World Evangelization: A Handbook on Church/Para-Church Relationships
- ✧ LOP 37: Towards the Transformation of Our Cities/Regions
- ✧ LOP 40: Marketplace Ministry
- ✧ LOP 41: Future Leadership: A Call to Develop Christ-like Leaders
- ✧ LOP 42: Prayer in Evangelism
- ✧ LOP 59: Business as Mission

We thank God for the Lausanne Movement and look forward to ongoing collaboration in the years to come.

CONCLUSION

The word transformation and its cognates have emerged as an expression of mission throughout the Christian world today. For example, representatives from seventeen Christian relief and development organizations met in February 2004 and agreed on a statement that expresses their vision as a collective association that the whole Church become a transforming and transformed sign of Christ's Kingdom among all people.

Different transformational streams, each with its own approach, are flowing into a river of transformation. As the river of transformation moves across the earth individuals, churches, communities, cities and nations are being transformed by the power of God through the people of God for the glory of God.

Christians are engaged in a transformational mission at the beginning of the twenty-first century. A cyclical pattern is emerging of those getting involved. It begins with a fresh awareness of the holiness of God which leads to greater humility. The humility of the servants of God makes way for a spirit of unity. Greater unity leads to the cultivation of a transformed and transformational community sensitized to discover, embrace and become servant catalysts on His mission of transformation. LORD JESUS, COME AND TRANSFORM OUR WORLD!
